'Fun on the Fourth' begins on the first

The Fourth of July fireworks will have an early start this year. Wilmington will open its celebration of the Fourth on Tuesday, July 1 on Wilmington Common.

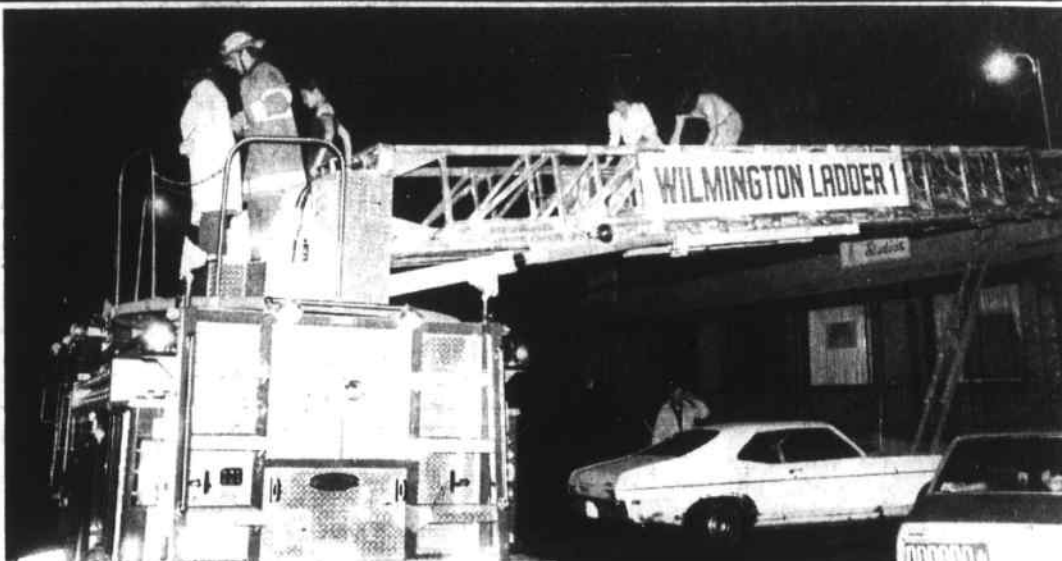

The sixth annual "Fun on the Fourth" celebration will open at 6 p.m. Tuesday with a spaghetti supper served by the Sons of Italy. A relay walk for couples will begin at 7 p.m. From 7 to 9 p.m., the Continentals will play in concert on the gazebo. Fireworks are scheduled for 9 p.m.

The carnival will be open from 6 to 10 p.m. every night beginning Tuesday through Saturday. The carnival will be located on the athletic field, behind the high

The Fourth of July Committee will run shuttle buses on Tuesday and Saturday nights, connecting several outlying parking areas in town to the Common. The committee has also produced a comprehensive parking plan, using several outlying lots. The plan bans parking on several streets near the common. Complete details of the parking plan and shuttle buses appear on page nine of this paper.

A schedule of Fun on the Fourth events is on page eight of this paper. The annual Fun on the Fourth supplement, produced by the Wilmington Kiwanis Club, will appear in next week's Town Crier.

from fire

Eleven people were evacuated from two second-floor apartments over the Silver Lake Pharmacy about 11:30 Friday night after a smoky fire was discovered in the hallway. Firefighters arrived to find Officer Dave McCue with a fire extinguisher, coming down the stairs, having just extinguished a small fire. Firefighters then vented the building for smoke, and evacuated the residents, who had taken refuge on a side roof.

School opens on schedule says supt.

It looks like Wilmington High School will open on schedule in the fall, according to Superintendent Robert Horan.

At last Wednesday's school committee meeting, Horan brought up an alternative plan for placement of students should the high school not be available due to renovation. He explained, however, that "it certainly looks like we're not going to have to implement it."

The plan, which involves the use of the intermediate schools and doubles sessions, was requested by committeeman, Tony Accardi. He felt he wanted to be able to explore options before September rather than "react to a crisis."

The plan was devised by WHS Principal Paul Fleming who agreed with Horan's statement. Even though "right at the moment it (the school) looks like Berlin after the war," he said, he was "encouraged" by the stepped-up activity as workers strive to make good use of the summer months.

Horan suggested the committee meet in August to stress the construction progress.

Residents ask selectmen for attorney

by Arlene Surprenant

The heat was felt in more ways than one as over 75 residents packed a steamy selectmen's meeting Monday night to seek advice and funds to hire an attorney trained in environmental affairs.

The residents, most of them neighbors of a mixed income apartment complex slated to be built between Ballardvale Street and Arlene Avenue, said they had been stymied in efforts to get information on the project proposed by the Investors Management Group (IMG). They also felt strongly that an environmental specialist should be hired to research all aspects of a recently filed Environmental Notification Form (ENF) and to protect the town's interests at an upcoming Mass Environmental Protection Agency (MEPA) public hearing on July 2nd.

After much discussion and some heated words between selectmen and housing authority member Dan Gillis, the ball was tossed to the Wilmington Housing Authority (WHA) to see if that board could provide the necessary funds since the project, according to selectmen, is currently under WHA jurisdiction.

Residents had the opportunity to vent their frustration and air their concerns through spokesmen Mark Lutz, A. Thomas Traina, and Janine Goudreau.

Speaking as a private citizen, Lutz told selectmen that such a dense development is "a very serious concern" and its impact would be felt

"all over town." He added it was "essential" the town push for an Environmental Impact Study on the property.

Traina pointed to IMG's alleged "arrogance" and the "manner" in which the proposal was made.

"I recognize this is a unique situation where an outside group is trying to circumvent town ordinances set up by qualified individuals," added Traina, as he called for emergency measures such as hiring a specialist to meet the problem "head on." It should be noted that, at a prior meeting, IMG representatives said they didn't expect the project to pass town meeting so they would seek a comprehensive permit under Chap 774.

In a prepared statement, and in comments throughout the meeting, selectmen said they were loath to take any action at this time because of "insufficient information" filed with their board.

There is a proper process to follow, chairman Rocco DePasquale told residents, and "all we can ask is for the process to take its course." He stressed that his board is not attempting "to shirk our duty to the town." Rather, once IMG seeks a comprehensive permit through the zoning board of appeals, he added, his board can get involved.

"If they can get a comprehensive permit, they're in," countered Goudreau as she too urged selectmen to hire an environmental specialist and take action before it was too late.

DePasquale cautioned residents not to "overreact" and, in a strong statement meant to quell any rumors, said that "none of us (selectmen) have any vested or financial interest in that property other than the interest of the townspeople. . . I want that to be explicitly clear."

Some pointed comments were also made by selectman Jim Stewart. In discussing the need for another lawyer, Stewart said "the word attorney lends some scary interpretations to me" and suggested, instead, he be referred to as a consultant. Stewart stressed the board of selectmen can't "fight" what they haven't seen, adding that they intend to ask EOCD to require an Environmental Impact Study on the property.

"Why hire a lawyer if we'll do that?" he asked.

DePasquale brought up the problem of salary for a specialist. He said the money would have to come from the town's emergency fund or a special town meeting, both of which would pose difficulties. He and Bob Cain suggested instead, the funds should rightly come from the housing authority, causing Gillis to ask "you mean you're not interested in density and environment up there. . . you have to throw this back to the housing authority?"

DePasquale explained the issue is "not (yet) in our jurisdiction" leading Gillis to retort "this is the town's jurisdiction."

Overshadowing much of the discussion was the fact that Wilmington does not meet the 10 percent figure for low cost housing required by the state. As Gillis explained that "right now we're at a minimum," Stewart agreed the town has a commitment to provide affordable housing. The problem in the past, added DePasquale, is that people "buried their heads in the sand" when approached with proposals for low cost homes.

Residents plan to attend next Monday's WHA meeting and the July 2 public hearing on the ENF.

They will also continue to write letters to the state's Executive Office of Environmental Affairs, said Traina, until the cut-off day July 14th.

According to DePasquale, that office has already received "a couple of dozen letters" questioning the impact of the large development on the environment.

Editor's note: The public hearing scheduled for July 2 has been changed to Thursday, July 3 at 2 p.m.

School board eyes apartments' impact

by Arlene Surprenant

A majority of school committee members agreed last Wednesday to send a letter of concern to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts over the impact of 204 apartments on the North Intermediate School. The decision came after committeeman Bridget Zukas explained she had been informed of the proposal by resident of the Arlene Avenue area, who requested their help.

Zukas said she was personally concerned with the impact, especially since the school has had septic system problems in the past and there would be an increase in the noise level during construction.

Several members questioned whether they should get involved with the proposal at this time.

"I don't think, at this time, we have any power to stop it," said Tony Accardi of the proposal, though he did concede there was room for concern.

The committee voted unanimously to seek further information on the proposal from town boards such as the board of selectmen and the Wilmington Housing Authority and to send a letter of concern to the WHA.

Strawberry fest on Sunday at Harnden Tavern

The aroma of plump, juicy strawberries will fill the air around the Harnden Tavern from 1 to 4 p.m. on Sunday, June 29.

Covered with freshly made whipped cream, nothing compares with this tasty dessert on a warm summer afternoon. The Friends of Harnden Tavern invite history and strawberry lovers to partake of their strawberry festival.

The Tavern is located in Wilmington on Route 62 (Salem Street) at Woburn Street near the Health Center.

New vans for schools

The Wilmington School Department will be replacing its 1981 mini bus with two 12-passenger Dodge vans following a unanimous vote of the school committee last Wednesday. It is uncertain, at this time, whether the vans will be 1986 or 1987 models. The net cost of the '86 models would be $30,820 with an additional $880 price tag for each '87 model.

The only bid on the vehicles came from the Fred F. Cain dealership superintendent Robert Horan told committeemen, a fact which led to some vocal concern on why there weren't more.

The used mini bus is expected to be turned over to the town for additional service in exchange for a gas credit.

The picture captions identifying the model of Wilmington Center in last week's Town Crier indicated that the model was built for the Chamber of Commerce. Rob Enlow, who made the model, was hired by the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority.

The project falls under the scope of the Redevelopment Authority, but the model is located in the office of the Chamber of Commerce.

Some Woburn pollutants traced to Wilmington chemical plant

The name of a former Wilmington firm was introduced into the evidence in testimony on June 18 in a trial in the U.S. District Court in Boston involving well pollution in two wells in Woburn. The former National Polychemicals Company was named by Alfred DeFeo, an engineer who studied the Aberjona River as a part of a master's degree project, back in 1971, at Tufts University.

Eight families from East Woburn charge that six deaths and two illnesses resulted from the pollution of two wells, G and H, near the Aberjona River in Woburn. They charge that two Woburn firms were responsible for the pollution of those wells, according to stories which have been appearing in the Woburn Times. The two wells were closed down by the City of Woburn in 1979, after being used for 15 years.

The Cryovac Company, of East Woburn, a part of the W.R. Grace & Company firm, and the Riley Tannery Company, located off Salem Street are being named as the sources of the contamination. The Riley Leather Company, familiar to many for years in Woburn as owned, between 1978 and 1983 by the Beatrice Foods Company.

Much of the testimony in recent weeks has involved trichloroethylene (TCE) and similar solvents, said to induce leukemia. Lawyers for the plaintiffs contend that underground contaminated water flows 2,400 feet from the Grace site to the wells, which were closed in 1979. The evidence has been disputed with statements that the water from the two wells came from the Aberjona River.

DeFeo, testifying on June 18 for W.R. Grace, said that his study in 1971 showed that the Wilmington chemical plant was dumping a malodorous, highly acidic, reddish-orange waste product, with floating black scum, into a swamp which flowed into the river.

A number of other industries had also contributed to the contamination of the river he said.

DeFeo has worked for an engineering firm in Middleboro since 1978. Before that he worked for a number of years for the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE) and the state Department of Public Health.

While enrolled in his master's program at Tufts he was employed by the state, and was hired by the Aberjona River Commission as its executive director. In 1971 he was assigned the task of studying the Aberjona River, to determine the sources of contamination to the Mystic Lakes.

The commission was comprised of officials of several satellite agencies and representatives from Woburn, Winchester, Burlington and Stoneham, DeFeo said. The chairman was Dr. N. Bruce Hanes, an engineering professor at Tufts, and former chairman and member of the Winchester Board of Health.

DeFeo said he and two other students walked along the river and all its tributaries several times, during the course of 50 to 60 days during the first half of 1971. Samples were taken to be tested for pH (a measure of acidity); biochemical oxygen demand (BOD) and coliform bacteria.

In answer to a Grace attorney DeFeo said it was not possible, at that time, to test for the volatile organic solvents cited in the complaints of the plaintiffs. Such testing procedures were not available until the late 1970s.

The 1971 study, DeFeo said, showed that the Aberjona River was relatively clean from the Reading line to the junction of Hall's Brook in North Woburn. But Hall's Brook was highly polluted and extremely acidic, causing the Aberjona to be contaminated south of Hall's Brook.

Further investigation revealed that Hall's Brook was being contaminated by a drainage ditch running along the Boston & Maine tracks, and the primary source of that pollution was the National Polychemicals, DeFeo stated.

National Polychemical was dumping effluent into a swamp which flowed into the drainage ditch, he said. The pH of the water in the drainage ditch at one point dropped as low as 1.7 he said.

Seven on the pH scale is neutral, and one is pure acid.

At a monitoring station south of wells G and H, he said, the pH level was still acidic, with a measurement of 3.1.

During the summer of 1971 National Polychemical shut down for the employees' annual vacation. With the waste from the plant temporarily turned off, the BOD and the coliform bacteria pollution levels soared, DeFeo said. This indicated that there were additional sources of contaminant which did not show up when National Polychemicals was discharging its highly acidic waste.

Also, that summer, the MDC pumped groundwater near the E.C. Whitney barrel recovery firm, to prepare to install a sewer main. The "groundwater" was "highly colored" and emitted a "terrible odor," DeFeo testified.

Another Wilmington firm, Raffi and Swanson, was discharging a waste liquid into a drainage ditch which was emitting a strong odor of paint thinner, DeFeo said. Other firms which had drainage ditches or pipes leading to the main drainage ditch were the E.C. Whitney, the International Minerals of Woburn (now New England Pigments and Resins), the Woburn Barrel Company, and the Woburn City Dump.

Since the story in the Woburn Times on June 19, there has been another story reporting on the testimony of a different person, concerning the liquids in the "railroad ditch." The story was similar to that of DeFeo, and was reported as of 1971.

Passing the buck

by Arlene Surprenant

It was the old game of pass the buck, a game that boards in Wilmington seem to have down pat. You know the game, where one board blames the other or says its hands are tied, and the poor citizen - caught in the middle must seek help elsewhere.

Such was the scenario at Monday's selectmen's meeting. It would be unfair, however, to say selectmen have exclusive rights to the game. This observer has seen the game played all over town where board members, in the name of grandstanding, fear, political expediency or whatever you want to call it, decide to sit tight and let the other guy either take the blame or shoulder the shifted responsibility.

It's true the Board of Selectmen has some legitimate reasons for not getting involved in a project presently before the Wilmington Housing Authority. There were some honest attempts, on the part of selectmen Monday, to address residents' concerns over a dense development proposed for their neighborhood. There were also some excellent points made regarding the need for more affordable housing in Wilmington and the wisdom of following the proper process.

However, one got the feeling that not only did selectmen NOT want to get involved at this point, but they didn't seem to know as much as the citizens they supposedly represent. One got the unfortunate feeling that this group of neighbors, like other neighborhood groups in the past, had already completed much of the legwork and gone through a lot of hard work only to be left in a state of confusion holding the proverbial bag.

What appears to be lacking among Wilmington town boards is communication and an earnest attempt to set up some friendly dialogue. What appears to be lacking is cooperation and a sense that all boards are working together for the same cause.

It is to be hoped that, in the future, our elected and appointed officials can find a way to put aside personal feelings and politics and reach out in a genuine attempt to work together for the good of all citizens and, ultimately, the town of Wilmington.

Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

Like any local government, Wilmington has a good supply of committees, boards, and commissions, all of which put in their many hours of free time to serve the public. And, considering the time of year, it's only fitting that we pay some special attention and consideration to the Fourth of July Committee.

When the town celebrated its 250th anniversary in 1980, there was such a positive response to the festivities that many people wanted to make it an annual event. This culminated in the formation of the Fourth of July Committee, which coordinates the events on Wilmington Common, together with the Larry Cushing carnival, which will this year be held on the athletic field at the high school.

The celebration for the Fourth has evolved into a week long affair beginning on Tuesday July 1, and ending on Sunday July 6. In between all this is a huge variety of events which are suitable for every member of the family. And, this is quite appropriate considering the theme of the Fourth of July Committee. According to Committee Chairman Jack Cushing, "Our strongest belief is in the Wilmington Family".

Just to help everyone along, we at the Town Crier have carefully developed a listing of 'must do' events. This has been a carefully initiated study on our part, developed not only scientifically, but also based upon the food tastes of the author of Frankly Speaking. Subsequently, the 'must event' for Tuesday is the Spaghetti Supper sponsored by the Sons of Italy. As a true blue Italian its only natural that I would make this selection. You'll be sure to notice myself at the dinner as I'll probably be wearing most of the food. That is why I always wear a red shirt to such affairs.

On Wednesday, the Rotary steak barbeque is a good opportunity to see who the real meat and potatoes men are in town. This is a real conservative dinner, and probably should be sponsored by the Republican Town Committee. Thursday, July 3 is where we find the Lion's Club sausage and pepper supper. Now this is quite a challenge to the average person's stomach lining. My editor will not allow me to describe what happens to me when I eat sausage. Should anyone care to know, please give me a ring. Instead, I think I'll run the Road Race at six o'clock, along with Town Manager Buzz.

On Friday, we recommend the K of C breakfast beginning at eight o'clock. This is a good excuse to be a little late for work that morning, and K of C's have a great habit of putting on fantastic breakfasts. As for the early morning triathlon, that might be something you want to consult with your physician on, or perhaps even your life insurance agent to make sure your covered. Saturday is so loaded with goodies that you'll have to decide for yourself, though I think its safe to say that everyone will be sure to catch the fireworks in the evening. Of course one interesting event at ten o'clock in the morning is the croquet game. I still think they're going to have to import people from Weston and Concord for that one, or at least have Royal Switzer on hand for a 'royal' command performance. Finally, the week of festivities comes to a conclusion on Sunday with the Marine Corps League breakfast. This is for the real patriotic crowd in town, and make sure to wear your red, white and blue.

When you consider all of the activities that are offered during this week of celebration, its not hard to figure out that there are quite a few people who put in endless hours of work to make it all come together. With the support of the local service organizations, the Chamber of Commerce, and many other groups, the Fourth of July Committee is a group of hard working people who are dedicated to providing what is without a doubt the most enjoyed, family orientated event of the year.

Unfortunately, the Fourth of July Committee has had its share of obstacles this year. With the renovation of the high school the carnival had to be relocated to a new location. This brought about some protest from a very small group of residents, and two people in particular who are known, shall we politely say, for their flavor and bombastic speeches. However, in the end the carnival did find a home, and the 'Fun on the Fourth' will go on as before.

But aside from that one negative event, the community recognizes the contributions of the Fourth of July Committee and their many successes. This will be a significant year for them with the addition being added to the present Fourth of July building. And, Jack Cushing puts it all into prospective this way: "What I've strived for has come to view this year; people in the community working for the community, with our strongest beliefs in the Wilmington family".

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

I was appalled to hear the job of dog officer was going to be reposted. I found it particularly curious that the town manager wanted to repost the job when it was evident that he supported Ellen Webster's raise. I feel, that having taken an active part in the special town meeting, that the position of dog officer was given a raise only due to the wonderful job done by Ms. Webster. By reposting the job, can the town manager guarantee us (the taxpayers of Wilmington) that he'll find someone as efficient and conscientious as Ellen Webster?

Having been a resident of McDonald Road for 16 years, I can honestly say until the last few months we couldn't put the trash out more than one half hour before the garbage truck was due or we'd be picking it up all over again. Ellen Webster has remedied this. I currently reside on Adams Street with my new husband who had been plagued for about one year by a small band of dogs chasing his horses and tearing up his trash. In the past month, these dogs have yet to be seen on Adams Street.

These results came from Ellen Webster, who makes $5,512 a year, not by just anyone who wants to make $15,000 a year. She really cares.

I feel Ellen Webster has not only earned her raise, but she has also earned the right to keep her job that she does so well.

Sincerely, Robyn L. Marsh

Dear Larz:

I recently heard that the dog officer position is going to be reposted due to the outcome of the special town meeting. If you recall, the salary of the dog officer was increased. I was present at the meeting and I can't believe the position is going to be reposted.

It was my impression that the salary was being increased due to the merits of the present dog officer, Ellen Webster. It was stated at the special town meeting by the town manager that the salary increase would almost be covered by the revenue Ellen Webster has been bringing in.

I don't think it would be very intelligent to give the position to someone else who hasn't proven themselves. She has improved the condition of the kennel and the streets. She hasn't put any stray animals to sleep. (I know, I adopted a stray dog from her) I feel safe knowing Ellen Webster is out there on the road doing her job.

Sincerely,
Karen L. Denham

Dear Larz:

As a resident concerned with the environmental impact of the Wilmington Arboretum Project (204 apartments), the meeting with the Board of Selectmen (June 23) was somewhat disappointing.

The people went seeking funds to have the town hire an environmental specialist/attorney to protect the rights of the town on this environmental issue. The Environmental Notification Form (ENF) filed by the proposed developer is clouded with misleading and irresponsible statements as well as omissions. This ENF could be inadvertently rubber stamped on the state level, and this would enable the developer to obtain a comprehensive permit, which overrides certain local boards.

The people were well prepared. They had spoken to an environmental attorney. They believed environmental issues were the key. An Environmental Impact Study must be requested by the state and these environmental issues must be addressed now, before a comprehensive permit is obtained. It cannot wait until the selectmen are officially notified. An environmental specialist/attorney is needed.

But the selectmen were not totally responsive. The selectmen would act when notified. If this was too late -- perhaps another town board would take up the case and raise the funds. Environmental issues are just not their problem -- yet!

A Stitch in Time

Dear Larz:

I would like to offer my congratulations to the Town of Tewksbury and a pat on the back for the Tewksbury voter.

You are wise to hold on to any options available to your children. The more options you have the better your public school systems will have to be in order to keep themselves in business.

We parents, regardless of where our children attend school, are doing the most important, most demanding, most fearful job on this earth. We are each doing this job to the best of our ability. Not for appreciation (there is none) not for personal gain (no money is enough for this commitment). The only commodity equal to the job is the immeasurable love we have for our children.

Although we show it in different ways, we all share the same love, fears and vulnerability. We are all in the same boat. If we can't understand and support each other, there is little hope for the rest of the world.

After eight years in public school, I have changed to parochial education for my children. I made the change because I failed. I was unable to motivate my children and I failed to work effectively with the system to provide the motivation they needed.

So now, as with any other service a family cannot provide for itself, I choose to pay a high price for it. I am fortunate that my job, which provides the tuition, is only week-ends so that leaves me free to drive the three hours a day necessary to transport my children. I live in Wilmington and busing is not an option for me.

A few years ago, I would not have dreamed that I would be doing this. Keep your options open for an unknown future is a good move.

You were not duped into believing that the funds from busing would have any impact on your public schools or your fire and police protection. It's not easy to see through this distortion of facts.

Other issues need to be voted on independently. Eliminating this busing is a charge where no one gains and children lose. The time fighting against the busing would be better spent working to improve public education.

I hope that the animosity which arose from this issue will quietly dissipate and not affect your children.

I wish you peace and harmony.

Elaine Tucker

Dear Larz:

On June 9 a group of concerned residents attended a special town meeting to voice our opinions on our new dog officer, Ellen Webster. She received, with our votes, a well deserved pay increase from 5,000 to 15,000 yearly. Taking the low side of the 10 to 15 hour workday, seven days a week, this translates to $4.12 per hour with no benefits. Using the fine job she has done, she has raised revenues almost sufficient to cover her own salary, thus making the cost to the town very small. In this day, a value like this is almost nonexistent.

Now we are informed that her job has been reposted. This is a cruel trick to play on someone who has worked so hard, and put in so many hours, to improve quality and safety for our animals, children, and residents of Wilmington.

A political game like this could result in a large loss to our town. We may have just what we had before - NOTHING!!

A concerned resident
C. Liggerio

Dear Larz:

I was asked to attend the special town meeting June 9, by friends who were extremely interested in keeping Ellen Webster in the dog officer's position. They all knew I hated dogs, but I went anyway for the fun. Town meetings can be fun if they are short, and I was assured that it would be short.

Now I am told that the dog officer job has been reposted, and we could get a do-nothing like we had before. Just when I was comfortable walking in my dog free neighborhood, putting my trash out the night before, I am told the yapping beasts might be back.

Learning to live with 774

Residents of North Wilmington are quite upset with a proposal for 204 apartments which a developer seeks to build between Arlene Avenue and Ballardvale Street. The proposal from the Investors' Management Group takes advantage of a state program called TELLER, as well as of Chapter 774 of the Mass. General Laws, called the Snob Zoning Law.

Because the project would include low and moderate income units (20 percent of the 204) the developers are able to use Chapter 774. This law can be described as taking away control by the community, and putting it in the hands of the developer. From the standpoint of the community, it is a direct affront to the concept of local control.

Under 774, a developer applies for what is known as a comprehensive permit. All local approvals are then grouped into one application. From the standpoint of the developer, this makes sense. Instead of hopscotching from one board to another, everything goes through the Board of Appeals. The Board of Health and the Planning Board still have input, but in a reduced fashion, and channeled through the Board of Appeals. And if the developer doesn't like the ruling by the Board of Appeals, he simply goes to the state to have the local decision overruled.

Wilmington is not in a good situation when it comes to low and moderate income housing. There are a few units in single family homes, which the Wilmington Housing Authority controls. The WHA is in the process of building eight more units -- hardly enough to satisfy state officials.

In the past, two efforts to build low and moderate income housing in Wilmington have gone down to defeat. The most memorable was a proposal by the WHA in 1980 which would have created 25 units of family housing behind McNamara Tire, adjacent to a proposed 80 units of elderly housing, which would have occupied the site where the new skating rink is now under construction.

Several residents of the area banded together into a group called the Concerned Citizens of Wilmington, and were able to stop the housing. Since approval had to come through town meeting, they were able to shoot down the proposal.

Not satisfied with having stopped the housing proposal, they then went after the seats of housing authority members who supported the proposal. The defeated members of the housing authority were replaced by people promising to build "scattered site" housing for low income families. Progress has been slow on the eight units of low-income housing, and the town to date has no additional housing to show for their efforts.

The town has failed to meet its Housing Action Plan, signed by the selectmen and filed with the state in 1979.

Housing costs, meanwhile, have gone through the roof. The price of homes has quadrupled, and rental units are almost impossible to find. The crunch on for all segments of the housing market, low income or high.

The state allows $65,000 per housing unit for construction of Chapter 705 homes, such as Wilmington is planning. Wilmington has appropriated additional funds to ensure that these housing units will be single family homes. But will the money be enough? As time slips by, costs go up.

A previous proposal which would have provided low and moderate income housing in Wilmington was on a site off Woburn Street, near the Ipswich River. Like the current proposal, it would have consisted of market rental apartments, along with some low and moderate income units. When the proposal went for its 774 hearing, one requirement set down was connection to a public sewer. That made the proposal prohibitively expensive, as the nearest sewer was a mile away.

The problem, as far as Wilmington is concerned, is that the town is under the gun when it comes to low and moderate income housing. Methuen has had its state funding cut off for failure to provide such housing, and Wilmington could easily find itself in a similar pickle.

This has resulted in an almost comical situation, where some town officials are trying to count up every apartment in town, legal or not, in hopes that they will count as low or moderate income housing.

If the town wants to control the construction of low or moderate income housing, then it should begin constructing such housing. Otherwise the town will find itself facing more proposals such as the present one.

One possible means of creating more low income housing would be for the planning board to require that ten percent (or some number) of homes in new subdivision be set aside for low and moderate income families.

Unless the town finds a way to move forward with some low income units, it may have to learn to live with 774, the hard way.

Station closed, tanks removed

Fuel tanks have been removed from Bob Brown's service station in Wilmington, and the station has closed. The removal was spurred by the town's new underground storage by-law, which requires annual testing for underground tanks over 20 years old. The tanks were at least 45 years old, but there was no leakage found when they were removed from the ground. The Browns haven't made a final decision on the property, but have secured a variance allowing the construction of two homes on the site. The station dates from the late 1920's.

No more
gas

The sign at right says the story in one word. Bob Brown's service station is closed, and the gas pumps have been taken out. The prospect of replacing the fuel tanks was too much for the Browns, who faced their decision not knowing if they would also have to pay for cleanup of contaminated soil. Fortunately, there was no leakage, and no contamination.

Town center may change, selectmen told

by Arlene Surprenant
Jay Donovan, chairman of the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority (WRA), told selectmen Monday night that the Route 129 project which would impact one third of the present Town Center is in the 25 percent design stage.

While the "bureaucratic process" is being worked through at the state and federal levels in anticipation of an August public hearing, Donovan said his board is trying to find answers for local businessmen affected by the project and is moving ahead with plans for a new Town Center.

"I think the project is more than just the bridge," said Donovan as he went on to explain his board is concerned with safety issues and traffic congestion in the area, displacement of businesses, and environmental aspects of the project. He explained he had written two letters to DPW Commissioner Robert Tierney but, to date, has received no response, something which he claimed wasn't unusual.

Selectmen offered their assistance in moving the project along and, at the same time, sought the reason for the long delay of the state's public hearing. Donovan replied it was necessary to obtain the Federal Highway Administration's approval for any proposed changes. This, rather than an "unwillingness" to move ahead with the project, caused a delay and may cause a further one in August, he added.

Donovan showed selectmen how a new Town Center might look on a model of the present center. He explained that right now his board is playing an advisory role, but an implementation role and all the powers that go along with it are "within our realm," he was quick to add.

Selectman Chairman, Rocco DePasquale, called this "an important project" for the town. He added that only with the cooperation of the WRA, Chamber of Commerce, business task force, and local businessmen could they hope to address everyone's interests so the center of town doesn't end up as an "expressway."

Miceli reveals bridge plans to Wilmington C of C

Representative James Miceli is getting "mixed signals" about the proposed reconstruction of the Burlington Avenue bridge, and of Route 129 through Wilmington square. So he told an audience of about 65 persons Tuesday morning at a Wilmington Chamber of Commerce breakfast.

He told the audience that plans are in the making for a new Lake Street bridge over the railroad, and a new bridge at Butters Row, to be constructed sometime in the future.

Speaking of the Burlington Avenue bridge he said "By all means do the bridge - absolutely!"

The signals, not further identified by Miceli, are probably some Chamber of Commerce and other reports on the proposed construction, by business people in the area of Wilmington Square.

One such report was made up about June 16-18, addressed to Andrew Garity, project manager, at the Mass. Department of Public Works. The report was that: We have absolutely no confidence in this project as proposed."

It went on to say that "We believe this project will create more problems for Wilmington than it will solve."

There were 42 signatures of business owners and firms, attached to the letter.

Denise Gentile, owner of a beauty salon, and chairman of the "town center task force" established by the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce wrote a long letter reviewing the proposals to date. It expressed over-riding concern on the part of business people and residents alike.

Building owners feel that they will be uncompensated. Many are worrying that there will be no parking facilities.

"We do however, believe that with more information on the project and a location identified for the new Town Center, some of our negative feelings could very well change to something more positive" the report said.

"As the people most directly affected, we are willing to continue working with the Chamber of Commerce to the benefit of Wilmington and its business community."

There are problems of course, and one of those problems is the Heritage Commons office complex at 4 Middlesex Avenue.

Northeastern Development constructed two buildings, with parking and other space between, about where the new highway is to be located.

Forty feet was allowed for the proposed road. The plans now call for a 62 foot wide road. This is presumed to eliminate all or most of the parking spaces.

Town Manager Buzz Stapeczynski told Chamber members of an outline of the plans for Route 93 and 125, where "something has to be done."

He has discussed with State Commissioner Tierney a plan for a four ramp cloverleaf, with a bridge over Route 125. Everything is to be on right hand turns, to get into and leave Ballardvale Street.

The project is in the $10,000,000 range. At the present time Stapeczynski is looking for "good faith" money from some of the firms concerned.

He seeks about $200,000, to assist in the design, which is estimated to cost about $500,000.

Speaking of Route 93, and its intersection with Route 129, Rep. Miceli said that the state DPW will be making a report on that project next week.

It's YOUR Money

KEEPING RECORDS

Do you know how many miles you drove on business last year? What you paid for your kitchen remodeling? The purchase price of that stock you sold last year? You'd better. Because somewhere along the line you're going to need that information for the Internal Revenue Service. It's good business to keep good records.

If you deduct mileage for the business use of your car, count the miles. Though the IRS no longer demands a day-by-day, trip-by-trip log in your car, it's smart to jot down figures while they're current.

Capitol expenditures for your home can be added to your cost basis when you sell. Keep bills as long as keep your house and for some years after you report the sale.

When you sell stock you must declare the difference between its purchase price and the sale price. In case of audit, you'll want your broker's statement or confirmation. (Brokers now report your sale proceeds; do your figures agree?)

Patriotic Activities Committee member Tom Conlon also announced a decorated doll carriage parade at 11:30 a.m. for girls ages 8 and younger. At noon there will be contests for Little Miss and Little Mister Tewksbury. The pageant will be limited to youngsters 4 and under.

After a half-hour break for lunch, there will be a decorated bicycle parade for all ages, followed by a sack race and wheelbarrow race for high school and junior high boys and girls.

Next on the slate is a water balloon contest for men and women. Expect to get wet.

Also scheduled is a bologna toss for all ages, along with a one-lap race.

Dog officer position reposted

Wilmington Town Manager Buzz Stapeczynski has re-posted the position of dog officer, following a town meeting vote to increase the pay for that position.

A new dog officer, Ellen Webster took the job in March, at a salary of $5512 a year. She was chosen from a field of eight candidates.

She very quickly found out that job could not be done in the amount of time for which she was being paid, due to the number of calls received. She has been working some very long hours and taking home just over $90 per week.

A special town meeting voted on June 9 to increase the pay for the position to $15,000 per year, under a contractual agreement.

In re-posting the position, Stapeczynski said that it was being done by agreement with the selectmen that it would be re-posted if the pay were increased.

He said that the pay increase was significant, and there might be people interested in the position. He said that when it was previously posted, there were people who turned up their noses at the job, when they learned what it was paying.

Creative Arts for Kids summer programs

During the month of July Creative Arts for Kids (CAK) will again offer art classes in four separate sessions (July 7-11, July 14-18, July 21-25, and July 28-Aug. 1) for kids ages three through 11. The Arts Center in Reading will be transformed into the Land of Halley's Comet. Each week will include a different variety of projects such as "A Neighborhood in Outer Space" made in clay, Zodiac "Stained Glass" light catchers, solar mobiles,

"Jet Rocket" racers, making our own paper to paint on and more.

The age groups are broken down as follows: three to five, nine to 11 a.m.; ages six to eight, 10:30 to noon; ages nine to eleven, 12:30 to 2 p.m. Cost for a one week session is $25 and limited to 12 students. Each Friday at 12:30 there will be an open house. For more information please call the CAK office at 942-0538.

For students ages nine-14 Creative Arts is offering a two week course called "Opera-tunity" with Suzanne Pemsler, acclaimed soprano, opera performer and teacher. This course will be an intensive workshop in writing and performing an original opera. Students will develop the plot, characters, and will compose and notate the music. They will perform their work as musicians, singers, and actors in a grand finale for family and friends on Friday evening August 1. This course will be held at the Art Center, 25 Woburn St., Reading from July 21-Aug 1 (12:30-3:30) and limited to 20 students.

For more information call the CAK office at 942-0538.

Creative, but messy

Mary Maring of Wilmington and Eli Peng of Stoughton join in the fun of transforming the Creative Arts Center (CAK) in Reading into a "Peaceable Kingdom" with life size animals which were put on exhibit after their construction and painting at the Reading Public Library.

Tewksbury students win honors

Three Tewksbury High School students won academic honors at the annual Massachusetts Junior Classical League Convention held May 10 at Brookline High School. Kelli Johanan topped all other competitors in the state with her excellent performance on the Level I Mythology test. Catherine Norton won fifth place on the Latin II exam. Copping a fourth place ribbon in Level I Ancient History was Lisa Johanan.

Tewksbury High School's regional team of Robert Lynn, Cathy Cogliano, So-Jo Hwang, and Joyce Tibbets placed second in the state in Latin I-II.

Wilmington and Tewksbury High School sophomores were among area high school students recognized for their outstanding performance in Junior Achievement of Eastern Massachusetts, Inc. Award winners were honored at the 41st Annual Future Unlimited Night at the Sheraton Boston Hotel.

From Wilmington are Lynn Newhouse, Liz Morris, Jeff Gardner, Chris Pozzi and Mario Martiniello, all Wilmington High School students.

Hailing from Tewksbury are David Morel, Robert Hunt and Stephen Geribo, assistant vice president of marketing, all of Central Catholic in Lawrence; Jay Silvia of St. John's Prep in Danvers; and Tewksbury High students Dwight Hill, Joanne Morello, Christina LoNigro and Nick Grund, vice president of Finance.

Their company, Avco Crisis Team in Various Endeavors (A.C.T.I.V.E.), sponsored by Avco Systems Textron in Wilmington, was cited as Manufacturing Company of the Year. A.C.T.I.V.E. was selected from 412 participating companies. Also, the company was semi-finalist for Top Marketing Company and was recognized for earning over $2000 in sales.

Among the Wilmington and Tewksbury students receiving individual awards were:

Lynn Newhouse, 100 percent attendance, $100, Sales Club and Achievement awards; Liz Morris, Achievement awards $100 Sales Club; Jeff Gardner, 100 percent attendance; Nick Grund, Management Award; Dave Morel, Management and Achievement Awards; Jay Silvia, Achievement award; Joanne Morello, 100 percent attendance; Christina LoNigro, 100 percent attendance.

The Wilmington and Tewksbury students were joined by 11 other area high school students. They were advised by Avco Systems Textron employees, Manufacturing Production Planner Maureen Buckley, Production Planner Bob Cunio and Financial Analyst Brenda Jennings. In two visits to Avco the students had over $1000 in sales, almost half their over $2300 in total sales. A.C.T.I.V.E. was so successful the company yielded a 25 percent dividend on original investment.

For the past 65 years nationally and 39 years in Eastern Massachusetts, Junior Achievement has introduced students to the business world. During the 15 week program the students learned about business risks, profit potential, budgeting, planning, cost accounting, production and marketing.

Avco Systems Textron intends to continue its involvement in Junior Achievement because of the positive effects and experience the students receive from participation in the program.

French students to visit

Two Wilmington families will be sharing their homes for a month this summer with students from France. The Hills of Burlington Avenue will welcome Eric Martin of Nice, while the Hibbins family of Marion Street will host Alexis Bossier of Vanves. Both boys have studied English for five years.

The Wilmington families are participating for the fourth time in the annual Nacel Cultural Exchanges family homestay program which has brought more than 3,000 exchange students to our area over the past 10 summers. There is still a need for host families for the 300 French and Spanish teenagers who are hoping to be "American" by living with local families during July or August. Interested families can contact the coordinator Suzi Smith, Box 221, Canton, CT 06019 or call her any time at 203-693-8549.

Since 1967 the purpose of the non-profit exchange has been to foster international friendship by arranging four week homestays here and in Europe. At the same time as the French and Spanish students are living with American families 180 local students will be living with families in France, Spain and Germany. Many of these students hosted last summer.

"I feel it's an opportunity to show others the best of our country, our families and small communities," says Mrs. Smith, who adds, "We can all participate in a very personal way toward bringing the world together - one friendship at a time."

The students who will be here July 29-July 27 and July 25-August 20 pay their own airfare, speak English, are covered by insurance and bring their own spending money. The American families provide the welcome and include them in their daily lives for the month.

25 years ago

The June 29, 1961 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

Second. Lt. Donald Farnam, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Farnam of Wildwood Street received his commission at graduation exercises at the Officers Candidate School in Ft. Benning, Ga.

Editorial: "Perhaps we in Wilmington take our Department of Public Health for granted. How good it really is was best illustrated a week ago last night, during a meeting in Salem.

It was a meeting of the Northeastern District of Boards of Health, and during the course of the evening one public health official was praising the Public Health Department of Brookline and saying in effect that it was not only very good, but unique in Massachusetts.

Gus Walker, chairman of Wilmington's Board challenged the speaker to mention anything that Brookline had that Wilmington did not.

The speaker thought it was easy - he mentioned a full time Public Health Officer, a complete Public Health Laboratory, periodical tests in restaurants, including "smears" on glasses, examination of milk, etc. etc.

Each and every time an item was mentioned Mr. Walker countered to the effect of "that's what we do in Wilmington."

Which is a fact. Our Public Health Department is probably second to none in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

We don't know particularly just what type of people may be on Brookline's Board of Health, but there too we need not bow to anyone. Our Board consists of a lady with 12 years experience in Social Work, a former Assistant Professor in Chemistry, now head of a department in Avco, and a practicing Biologist.

Which probably is second to none in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Stevens Market was offering fresh ground hamburger and frankfurts three pounds for a dollar; oven fresh rolls for 29 cents a dozen and double green stamps every Thurs day.

Two Wilmington boys, Jon Meads and Charles Dolan were awarded scholarships at Boston College by the very Rev. Michael Walsh, S.J. president of the University.

Aldo Cairra of Chestnut street was elected Grand Trustee of Mass. Grand Lodge of the Sons of Italy.

Maybelle, a lamb living on Glendale Circle was being harassed by neighbors who complained of her early morning baaing.

Maybelle was pictured with her owner, Mrs. Howard Walden. "If Maybelle has to go, it won't be by vote of the youngsters in the area."

The new golf course being constructed on Chestnut Street was coming along fine.

Under the classified ads, an 18-year-old girl was asking for a babysitting position - 75 cents an hour; $5.00 for an eight hour day; and 85 cents an hour after 10 p.m.

Lion of the Year

Each year the Lions Club of Tewksbury chooses a "Lion of the Year," for his accomplishments. This year the vote was a tie, with two named. Cliff Bolton, outgoing King Lion is shown making the awards to Charlie Stella and Robert Langlois (right).

Sophistication highlights new Wilmington phone service

Want to 'phone home even when someone is already talking on your line? - Touch or dial just one or two numbers to reach emergency services? - Or forward incoming calls to another phone number?

According to David Ravanese, New England telephone public relations manager, company technicians are installing a new computerized telecommunications system at the company's call switching office on Main Street in Wilmington that soon will bring these and other services to Wilmington customers whose phone numbers begin with 657 or 658.

"The new system incorporates some of the most sophisticated electronics in our industry," Ravanese said. "It will process calls faster and use less electricity than other call switching systems."

"Also, a memory within the system contains telephone numbers and call-routing information that will enable customers to select callings services to fit their individual needs."

Among the services that will be available at minimal monthly charges when the system is activated in December are:

- Call waiting, a service that allows a person already involved in a phone conversation to be alerted, by a "beep" on the line, that another call is coming in;

- Speed calling, which enables callers to use their telephones to code phone numbers into the system's memory and then touch or dial just one or two numbers to speed calls through to emergency and frequently called numbers;

- Call Forwarding, which allows automatic forwarding of incoming calls to another telephone number; and;

- Three-way calling, which allows a third party to be added to an existing conversation.

Ravanese said the computer-based telecommunications switching system processes voice and data transmissions over internal digital lines and contains thumbnail-sized computer chips called microprocessors, that can perform more than one million calculations per second.

He added that the system also continually tests, diagnoses and gathers data on itself - automatically giving company technicians reports at least once a day.

This project is one of many New England Telephone is undertaking this year in Massachusetts as part of its $429 million program to continue expanding and modernizing its network to meet the telecommunications needs of its 2.8 million customers in the state.

By the end of 1986, nearly 70 percent of New England Telephone customers in Massachusetts will be served by computerized call switching systems.

Wilmington boys crack tourney

A hearty and sincere congratulations to the Wilmington boys under 12 soccer team, which this week qualified for a place in the state tournament to be held in Amherst at the University of Mass. next weekend. Good luck to the boys and their coaches, and congratulations on a job well done.

Boys under 12

After identical 9-1 records, Wilmington and Lowell locked horns in a playoff game to determine the divisional champion.

In the first minute of the game, the advantage went to Lowell, as a player converted a penalty kick into a goal.

Despite excellent passing attacks mounted by Brian Wallace, Joey Catanzano, Tom Zaya, Gerard Forgett and Brent Carbone, the Wilmington team was unable to score until the last minute of the half. At that time, Jimmy DeMarco parlayed tricky dribbling and a strong kick into the tying goal.

Strong performances by fullbacks Christian Armata, Chris DeFrancesco and David Oatis gave Wilmington the territorial edge in the second half. However, with four minutes remaining, a splendid shot by a Lowell player went over the goalies' head and into the net for the apparent game winner.

Understandably, the Lowell team was thrilled, while the Wilmington boys were heartbroken. Seconds later the emotions were reversed as the referee at the insistence of Wilmington's goalie inspected the goal net and, after determining that the ball went over the crossbar and through a hole in the net, nullified the goal.

The teams were unable to score for the remainder of the half. Two overtimes later, the score was still deadlocked.

The championship would have to be decided by a penalty kick shootout. Wilmington shooters Tom Killilea, David Dussault, Brent Carbone, Derrick Stokes and Jimmy DeMarco scored on four of five shots.

The skilled Lowell players were only able to convert three shots to goals, thanks to superior goaltending by John Martins.

Wilmington had won the Divisional title and the opportunity to battle Wakefield for the right to represent the Middlesex Youth Soccer League in the State Division II Tournament.

The game against Wakefield was another nailbiter. Unlike the Lowell game, Wilmington was the first team to score.

After a scoreless first half, Tommy Zaya calmly redirected a

John Lynch cross into the net. The joy lasted only a minute however, when Wakefield striker slammed in a goal to tie the game. The game remained knotted at the end of regulation time. Strong performances by fullbacks Eric Flynn, Chris DeFrancesco, Tommy Killilea and David Oatis kept the ball in the Wakefield end of the field.

After nine minutes of overtime, Jimmy DeMarco did it again. From 30 yards away, he hammered a line-drive into the top of the net to put the local team ahead.

Wilmington won the game and the opportunity to compete in the Division II State Championship at Amherst next weekend.

The Wilmington Spring Instructional Program came to an end Saturday after two weeks of cancellations because of wet field conditions.

The league were able to conclude the season, though not on the best of field conditions. The Shawsheen Field had numerous puddles, but the youngsters were able to dodge or run through them and still enjoy the final Saturday of spring soccer.

Each child was awarded a patch for their participation.

What you should know about wheel alignment

PART IV

WHY FOUR WHEEL ALIGNMENT?
You'll understand the need for 4-wheel alignment after considering this question

Q. In which direction will this car travel if the steering wheel is held straight?

1. To the left
2. To the right
3. Straight ahead

A. The answer is "to the left." The front wheels "steer" the car, but the rear wheels "direct" the car. It's the position of the rear wheels and the directional forces they create that bring about the need for 4-wheel alignment. To go straight ahead in a vehicle like this, you'd have to turn the steering wheel slightly to the right. This puts the front and rear wheels parallel so the car would travel straight ahead, but the steering wheel would be cocked and the steering system off center.

Four wheel alignment solves these problems by referencing all four wheels to a common centerline. This way, the operator can adjust the suspension so all four wheels are parallel while the steering wheel is centered.

Tewksbury Family Night

Tuesday evening, July 8, Tewksbury Youth Baseball, in cooperation with the Boston Red Sox, will sponsor the first annual Tewksbury Family Night at Fenway Park when the host Boston Red Sox will entertain the visiting Oakland A's.

Boston Red Sox baseball has been one of New England's finest traditions for 85 years. Fans from all over New England have flocked to Fenway Park to enjoy exciting Red Sox baseball. All fans have many memories of seeing the baseball rattling around in one of Fenway's many tricky corners as the winning run scores, or of the ball sailing over that often friendly "Green Monster."

This year, the Boston Red Sox have introduced a unique fund raising program which is designed to bring together members of communities such as ours in Tewksbury, while helping Youth Baseball raise funds for a worthwhile project. Consequently, Youth Baseball has teamed up with the Boston Red Sox to plan the first ever Tewksbury Family Night at Fenway Park.

You should know that when you purchase a ticket for this game at the regular price, the Boston Red Sox will reimburse to Youth Baseball a percent of the regular ticket price and these funds will be used by Youth Baseball for a very special purpose.

For a long time now, those many thousands of you who have given so willingly of your time to help Youth Baseball, have often wondered aloud how the organization could raise funds to put lights on the Little League fields at East Street. Well, wonder no more.

If this project is as successful as it can be, and with your help Youth Baseball believes that it will be more successful than anything it has ever tried, lights will be placed on at least one of the Little League fields at East Street this summer.

Tickets may be purchased for $8.00 each from your local Little League or Senior League player, or by calling 851-4600 or 658-4412.

Tickets will be distributed to individual purchasers during the week of June 22-28. Arrangements for group distribution of tickets will be made with each group.

The Outdoors Column

by Bill Conlon

All of God's creatures have days that are more hectic than others. Sad, but it happens.

The reasons are legion: the car breaks down during rush hour; the kids are screaming like banshees and drowning out the ringing phone; even something as minor as a boiling dinner pot can cause temporary insanity. It's a mystery why we aren't all stark, staring mad.

But there is a cure for our troubled times. Just a short trip outdoors, even a walk in the park, can work wonders. Spending time with nature is far more soothing than any aspirin ever made. It provides calm from within.

For me, there is nothing to equal a pond at sunset. There I can find a tranquility that exists nowhere else in my world.

At that one magic hour, right at sunset, the wind dies down to a whisper. What's left of the sun peeks through the trees, making the water glow like polished copper. Add a gentle swirl by the lily pads and the picture is complete. Aaaaah. The image is so real, in fact, that I can see it right now, in my mind's eye, even though I'm far from the lily pads.

And that's why I fish. I'm there to catch fish, no question about it, but I'm there for something else, too.

Some folks are impatient about fishing and miss the full benefits. They go out to catch fish, period, and if the fish don't cooperate they get all grouchy and grumbly. I've taken special care to identify those troubled souls and try to avoid them whenever possible. They know no peace and never will.

Many are the trips I've made, only to come back empty handed at day's end. But few indeed are the trips where I've come back to the dock without something to show for it, however intangible.

So, next time you feel like your head is ready to explode, go put a canoe on the water and watch the sun as it turns water into gold. You don't even need to fish.

You'll know soon enough why you came.

--Tackle Box--

Commissioner Walter Bickford from the Department of Fisheries, Wildlife and Environmental Law Enforcement is coming to tour the Shawheen River. The tour will be held Thursday morning, June 26, and will include a press conference around 11:45 a.m. at the K of C hall on Main Street, Tewksbury. Rick Barry is providing the canoes.

A new world's record shad was caught recently by one Robert Thibodo on the Connecticut River. The monster weighed in at 11-pounds, 4-ounces. The previous record was a tie at 9-pounds, 10-ounces, which was set on both the Connecticut in 1983 and the Merrimack in 1984.

And get this -- the 8 lb. test line Thibodo was using happened to be Trilene. For setting a new world record with the Trilene line, Bob will probably receive the company's $1,000 reward. Talk about icing on the cake ...

Pickering Wharf Race July 18

The seventh running of the Pickering Wharf 10K Classic Road Race, set for Friday, July 18 is expected to attract one of the largest and most competitive fields in the history of North Shore road racing. Sponsored again this year by the Salem Five Cents Savings Bank and Coors Beer through Merrimack Valley Distributors, the Pickering Wharf 10K will benefit the American Heart Association for the second consecutive year.

Last year's race, which saw nearly 1200 runners take off from the starting line, was widely praised by both runners and press as one of the best road races in Eastern New England last year. This NEAC sanctioned race will be hosted by the North Shore Striders track club, which also earned kudos for their handling of the 1985 event.

Top male and female open division milers will each receive the Pickering Wharf 10K Cup, while second place finishers of the male and female masters divisions (40 and over) receive Salem Five Cups and male and female junior division (age 18 and under) winners take home Wharf Cups. All the above prizes are engraved pewter bowls. Merchandise and gift certificates from the many fine merchants of Pickering Wharf will also be awarded to as many as 20 other runners, including several "back of the pack" prizes.

The race day activities held at Pickering Wharf, Salem's picturesque seaside shopping village, are always a treat for runners and spectators alike. With live entertainment, food and special guests at the awards ceremony, the post race festivities take on a party atmosphere.

All race entrants will receive Pickering Wharf 10K Classic t-shirts (limited to the first 1500 entries) and are invited to join in the post race activities which include entertainment, hot dogs, soft drinks and Coors beer.

The Pickering Wharf 10K is being staged as a fundraising event for the American Heart Association. Runners are encouraged to enlist sponsors to donate money for each kilometer run which will go to support AHA programs. Prizes will be given to individuals who raise the most money for the charity.

Starting time is 7 p.m. from Pickering Wharf, Derby and Congress Streets in Salem, Mass. Fee is $7.00 pre-entry (received prior to Wed., July 16); $9.00 post-entry (up to 30 minutes prior to race time). Letter to sports editor

Dear Rick:

Our sincere thanks for your assistance in mentioning Bentley's involvement in each of the youth basketball activities in Wilmington. Each mention certainly reflects well on Bentley College and our athletic program, and we want you to know that we sincerely appreciate it from a public relations standpoint.

More importantly, however, it seems the kids and parents of the community are rallying behind the whole concept, which is gratifying to all of us involved. So thanks too to someone who is helping to generate local basketball interest as well.

Sincerely,

Review board for drug suspensions?

by Arlene Surprenant

The establishment of a review board and counseling help for offenders were two suggestions made by a coaches' sub-committee last Wednesday to update the school system's two year old drug policy.

Members of the Superintendent's Drug and Alcohol Abuse Task Force listened as Athletic Director Jim Gillis outlined his committee's proposals. They included a two week suspension from extracurricular activities for a first offense with increased restrictions for second and third violations; professional counseling for offenders; an appeal process through a review board; and a vehicle whereby users could turn themselves in to their coach without fear of restriction from extra activities.

Gillis explained that his committee believed in a "strong" policy, but it should be "more rehabilitative and less punitive."

Task force members seemed to back the idea of a reduction in the present year's restriction from extra activities and a move to implement some sort of counseling component.

WHS Principal Paul Fleming said "I cannot support suspension for the rest of the year for a first time offender. I think that's harsh and can crush hope and desire and a youngster's willingness to come to school."

Juvenile Officer Bob Spencer concurred. He told members if you take away the enjoyment of a social life for a year, "you may be taking away hope and you may end up with a bigger problem."

Chemical People Chairman Ann Linehan called the one year restriction "not realistic" and went on to add that the policy's "strength" lies in the fact that it was designed to be remedial. She asked that a student evaluation be an essential part of the policy and be "across the board" for all offenders.

"I have to admit a lot of things were left out of the original policy," said Lorna Stockbridge, explaining that counseling sessions were considered "very important" but somehow didn't become part of the policy.

School committeeman, Shirley Callan, suggested that if the system could afford it, they hire a counselor qualified in substance abuse. Assistant Superintendent, Henry Dembowski, went a step further. He suggested hiring a health educator trained in substance abuse who could be both a counselor and part time teacher.

Town receives letter on Olin shutdown

by Arlene Surprenant

Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski received a letter several days ago confirming the closing of Olin Chemical Corporation's South Wilmington plant and outlining its schedule to shut down production. According to the letter from Plant Manager, Ronald McBrien, the product blending operation is expected to shut down July 1 while a production shut-down will follow September 1.

The shut-down process will be closely monitored by the Wilmington Board of Health, the Wilmington Fire Department, and other boards were applicable, Stapczynski told selectmen Monday night. He added that the town is awaiting a closure plan which will also be forwarded to state and federal regulatory agencies.

In a recent executive session, selectmen discussed the possibility of hiring liaison at Olin's expense to look out for the town's interest during the process.

Referring to the facility as "a trouble spot for the town of Wilmington," chairman Rocco DePasquale told fellow board members he was concerned that Olin had no intention of selling that land. He questioned if, under current zoning bylaws, the company will lose its right to have chemicals on that property over a period of time. Stapczynski replied that was a question for Town Counsel.

Wilmington selectmen seek budget involvement

The Wilmington Board of Selectmen hope to get more involved in the budget process next year, a move Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski said he would welcome.

In a brief statement made during Monday's meeting, Jim Stewart called for some "interaction" between his board and the finance committee. He suggested a member of his board be present at all fincom budget meetings next year, especially since both boards may have a different perspective on the budget.

Stapczynski explained that selectmen see the bottom line but rarely get to review the actual figures.

Stapczynski explained the town department heads are currently formulating their budgets in a "year long (budget) process." Selectmen expect to go over their priorities in the near future.

Arts and crafts picnic

The arts and crafts picnic will be held at the Tewksbury-Wilmington Elks picnic grounds Thursday, July 24 starting at 10 a.m. Coffee and muffins will be served during the morning hours and the meatloaf barbecued chicken will be served at noon.

A $1.00 no refundable deposit is being requested by the committee to help defray the cost of the day.

Spirit of Boston

The Spirit of Boston therapeutic social is almost filled. We have only 150 seats available to us. The Spirit of Boston senior citizen special had been sold out. Many councils are waiting for cancellations. If we do not fill our quota by the first week in July we will turn back any seats we have left, as is requested to help defray the cost of the social.

If you have not signed up and want to attend, please do so within the next two weeks, or your name will have to be placed on the waiting list.

Clothes available

Since we have moved into our new senior center, clothes are being donated to us almost every week. These clothes have never been worn or are in excellent condition. At the present time we have a very large double closet filled with all types of clothes. Women's coats, slacks, shirts, skirts and dresses. Men's suits, sport coats, slacks, shirts and sweaters. Any senior may try them on for size. Check with Frances. She will get the item you are interested in and the size. The closets hold only so many clothes; if we do not distribute them to the seniors after a certain length of time, a senior who spends a day a week at the Pine Street Inn will take those that are left to the Inn. This allows us room for the new donations as they come in.

Get well cards needed

Any senior who has any get well cards they can not use, is asked to donate them to the Center. There are many seniors a month confined to the hospital. To lift their spirits we like to send them a card signed by the seniors wishing them well. At the present time the supply is depleted.

Dance class discontinued

Because it is getting very warm at the Center, the dance teacher will have to discontinue classes until the fall. The dancers are kept very busy learning new an old ballroom dances and line dances. With only one door in the function room it is very uncomfortable.

Exercise class outside

The exercise instructor said she will take the class outside on very warm days if the seniors agree, until the air conditioning is in.

Park at the center

The Town manager has requested that seniors park in the Buzzell Senior Center parking lot during the week of the Fourth of July celebration. The parking area will be marked for senior parking only. Barrels will be placed across the front. This is for your safety during this week. It will prevent you having to walk a distance to get to the common.

Movie cancelled

The movie this Thursday will be cancelled. Fran Calann, aid to Congressman Markey will be at the Center beginning at 2 p.m. to speak to seniors on changes in Social Security, Medicare, S.S.I, Medicaid etc. She will also answer questions.

Converse world headquarters opens

Returning shoes to New England

By DOUG BOYLE

NORTH READING — The recent return of the National Basketball Championship to the Boston Celtics may have been basketball shoes made there will be the best product on the courts.

Among the satisfied clients of "the largest U.S. manufacturer of athletic shoes," are the World the return of 320 jobs to the building.

Converse Board Chairman Richard B. Loynd told Middlesex East "some of the work (now being done in North Reading) was done at plants in North Carolina or overseas." He also said the company would be providing training to some young people in the art of making molds because the company is having a "hard time finding old style mold makers," for their custom orders.

The new building will house the corporate world headquarters of the company as well as all research and development functions, including Converse's Biomechanics Laboratory, integrated into a four-story 106,000 square foot building with the capacity to hold 400 people.

Loynd explained that once capacity has been reached, "the building has been built for a 30 percent expansion capability," on the 12-acre site.

Loynd refrained from saying that the company was starting a trend to bring the shoe industry back to Massachusetts and explained that the main manufacturing facilities will remain at their present locations in North Carolina and Puerto Rico.

The company employs about 2200 people world-wide, and, according to Loynd, "one-half the product made is sold in the United States."

As part of a commitment of growth Loynd said the company will be test-marketing a new product line called the Hampton in the Boston area this summer.

The shoe is expected to add the comfort of an athletic shoe to the looks of regular shoes.

If the test-marketing is successful, the shoe will be added to Converse's line of over 300 basketball, running, fitness, field, and racquet sports products.

At the building's dedication ceremony in April, Converse President John P. O'Neil said, "This building represents the culmination of nearly 75 years of research, development and dedication to producing the most technologically superior footwear in the industry." He added that the new facility will afford Converse the opportunity to advance its design, development and testing of athletic shoes to a new level of excellence.

During a tour of the modern facility it was explained that many changes have been made to the basketball line since it was first designed by Chuck Taylor in 1915 — the Taylor name was added to the line in 1923. It was found along the way that the canvas cloth the original sneakers were made of gave only a minimal support to the ankle and therefore leather has been added in recent years.

Legally, we've come some distance since 1215.

Thanks to the cruelty of King John and his need for more taxes, in fact, the English-speaking world's legal cornerstone, Magna Charta, was fashioned in that year — as a device with which one privileged class wrested liberties from a particularly noxious example of another privileged class.

Ingenious but not too scrupulous, John sold heiresses and widows to the highest bidders, murdered his nephew, and placed various other relatives to starve to death in untidy conditions.

Meanwhile, we the peasants rose at first light to backbreaking work in field or forge, and, just like today, were born, married, reproduced and died, pretty much removed from history's great events.

Locally, in those respects at least, things have not changed a great deal.

It has been 771 years since the English barons procured certain rights from John.

There are gentler descendants of that son of a queen among us. Many locals, in fact, including this writer, are descended from the whacko royal, on both sides of the blanket.

But a process of civilization is supposed to have occurred — including the evolution of law — and the law tethers us neatly, both within property rights and human nature, in an aim to avoid such excesses as John perpetrated on his peers.

Local laws have been included in this evolution.

Sometime after Magna Charta, in this commonwealth, a former local Selectman was fined for an offense against the laws concerning baptism, neglect of public worship, and ordered to be searched for Quakers.

Quakers, had they been found, might have been hanged.

Whether that was an improvement, after four centuries is of course debatable. Though we are today no longer subject to religious laws, except obliquely, local statutes and by-laws govern a surprising portion of our daily lives, from the knifing of zebras at Stone Zoo to residential zoning regulations.

And for the modest cost of a few dollars and the investment of a little time, residents may obtain copies of the by-laws at city and town halls — or consult reference copies at local libraries.

North Reading's Selectmen, like other politicians, have the power of giving, accepting and taking away. They may authorize the sale of town-owned property worth no more than $500, accept gifts of land, on behalf of the town, and take land for municipal purposes or remove appointed officials.

You need fear no horses galloping on a public way at midnight in North Reading, so don't look for the headless horseman in that town. The riding or leading of horses on a public way, in fact, is expressly forbidden between half an hour after sundown and half an hour before sunrise.

Modern horsepower, dead or alive, is also regulated by North Reading's by-laws: junked, stripped, partially dismantled or wrecked motor vehicles must be "unexposed to view of the public or abutters," — unless the area is operated by a properly licensed person or corporation.

Heard any mini-bikes, all-terrain vehicles or snowmobiles in the wee hours lately? "In no case shall such vehicles be operated within the confines of the Town between the hours of 9:00 p.m. and 7:00 a.m.," according to Chapter Seven, Section Nine.

Cantering or snowshoeing west from North Reading brings the traveler to Wilmington, a place that discourages noxious stench and effluvia which may endanger the health and comfort of the neighborhood.

Crates, barrels, and casks, among other items, may not be placed upon any Wilmington sidewalk or public way for more than 30 minutes — or 10 minutes after police warning — unless they contain refuse for public collection. Such trash, by the way, may be put out only on the

A SEEMingly great evening in Boston

Recently, the families and friends of children from SEEM Day Care enjoyed an exciting evening of discovery at the Boston Children's Museum. The Parent Advisory Committee of SEEM Day Care rented the entire facility for the evening in order to allow the 225 guests maximum exposure to all the wonderful exhibits.

Among the most popular exhibits were: the climbing sculpture, motion machines, giant telephone and the bubble making water play area. The "Market in China" was especially enjoyed by several Chinese children and their families.

This event provided two hours of creative and entertaining learning and best of all, it was just plain fun for grown-ups, too! Many thanks to the Parent Advisory Committee for their enthusiasm and hard work in planning fundraising, social and educational outings for children at SEEM Day Care.

SEEM Day Care is open year round from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. We give care to children from 15 months old to those entering kindergarten. We are located at the E. Ethel Little School on Barbary Road in North Reading. There are still openings for three and four-year olds. Please contact Martha at 664-5971 or 944-4733 for more information.

TOWN OF NORTH READING INC. 1853

TOWN ADMINISTRATOR JEFFREY ZAGER provides executive arm, in this case shirt-sleeved, under general supervision of North Reading Selectmen. Zager's administrative post, which the U Maine grad has held since December of 1985, includes implementation of various town by-laws.

day before or the day of its designated pickup time.

Are you posting yard sale signs? Check the law. No one "shall affix posters or signs or advertisements... upon town property, real or personal, or upon the poles and other equipment of utilities located within the limits of town ways, or nearer than one hundred feet of any public way."

Local police departments grant the practice may be difficult and obnoxious to enforce — but a yard sale sign left for days after the sale is practically a signed confession advertising that you broke the law. It also misleads buyers.

Bathing between the hours of midnight and 6 a.m. is prohibited "in any waters" of the town of Wilmington, "or at any time in a state of nudity, in places exposed to public view, or in immediate sight of the occupants of any dwelling." The question of walking nude was not addressed.

Climbing public shrubs is also discouraged in Wilmington — as is permitting your poodle to attack the town's murmuring pines and hemlocks.

In neighboring Tewksbury, a dog, though sitting, will be classified as "running loose" if it is found in any place other than the owner's or keeper's premises — or under control by a leash or chain no longer than six feet.

Pawnbrokers and junk dealers in Tewksbury must pay a $100 fee for issuing and recording of their license — and there is a $25 fee for issuing and recording licenses to keepers of intelligence offices — a small price if intelligence is the result.

Billiard saloons, pool or "sippio" rooms or tables and bowling alleys must pay a licensing fee of $30 in Tewksbury, plus a $25 fee for the first, and $10 for each additional table or alley.

"Consumption," by the way, in local by-laws, generally means something well beyond a literal interpretation of the word, when it applies to alcohol — which is subject to a carefully crafted Tewksbury by-law that is typical of other area regulations.

"Consumption," in this instance, means "to consume, drink, or to have opened, or partially filled any container of alcoholic beverages," on your person or under your immediate control. Residents of area communities have even reported having partially used bottles of mouthwash confiscated for testing by local police.

Finally, in Tewksbury, standers and loiterers are discouraged, and subject to arrest if the standing or loitering is "in such a manner as to obstruct the free passage of travelers." The law is not to be construed to deny the rights of peaceful picketing — and no loitering or gathering is permitted within 150 feet of a polling place.

Verbal solicitation of the voters within that same 150 feet is also prohibited — so if you ever feel hounded there by politicians or their minions, you may have recourse — to other politicians.

Next: Conclusion: Burlington, Winchester, and the City of Woburn.

Converse offices

support, further research showed a Y-bar design made out of Surlyn gave a superior support and so the change was made by Converse to that design.

However research is ongoing by the company on the basketball shoe of the future which will be made of a plastic with a springboard factor built into the shoe, hopefully resulting in a higher jump.

The information for this development comes from the Biomechanics Lab, which has equipment that deduces 1200 pieces of data taken from just one jump shot from the specially designed basketball court inside the building.

The lab is equipped with other instruments that can complete functions such as figuring the stress points on shoes designed for today's aerobics exercises. This is done — as one company official explained — so the shoe is not being worn just for its aesthetic value but also for its practicality.

The machines housed in the lab — one of only two in the country owned and operated by a footwear manufacturer — measure impact and cushioning, rearfoot control, heel counter stiffness, forefoot flexibility, traction and ankle support.

However, to look at the building one would not guess that inside the facade of openness presented by the glass atrium, is the secretiveness of an industrial research lab.

Upon first view, a visitor to the world headquarters looks inside the atrium to "...an innovative display of new products and company disciplines. The state-of-the-art lobby also features original oil paintings by the renowned artist, Michael Dudash.

The full length pictures display Converse's entry into many portions of the sports field, by depicting likenesses of Bird, the Los Angeles Lakers' Magic Johnson, the Philadelphia 76'ers, Julius "Dr. J." Erving, who uses up to 90 pairs of sneakers per season, tennis stars Jimmy Connors, who never wears a pair of sneakers twice, and Chris Evert-Lloyd, along with Yankee first baseman Don Mattingly.

Thought for company personnel was also put into the building, as besides a modern cafeteria on the main floor, a snack lounge was installed on the fourth floor, and the basement level contains a fully equipped exercise room.

The building has created a very cohesive work environment and has improved the productivity of the nearly 320 people who work here," said O'Neil. "The employees are responding to the updated business machines, streamlined operations and healthy atmosphere."

Along with the new jobs being brought into the area by the company even the construction provided work for area residents as the 16-month project was managed by Randal Building Company, of North Reading.

IMPROVE THE VALUE OF YOUR HOME...

with a new bathroom installed by Brogan Plumbing & Heating.

Today, many homes have an outdated bath that was installed in the 1950 or 60's when the home was originally built. Much has changed in styles, color and function. Faucets and showers that conserve water, bathtubs that retain heat better, water closets that flush with less water and of course, in a style that will enhance the value of your property and at a cost that is much lower than you think!

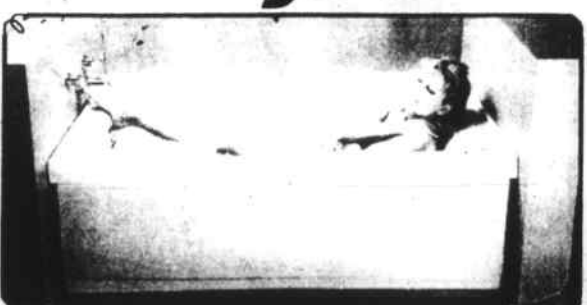

Remodeling the bath (and kitchen) can become a wise investment. For that investment we recommend Eljer plumbingware, a leader in plumbing fixtures and fittings offering new ideas for remodeling or new construction. Make a statement about your lifestyle and invest in the one room that so often gets overlooked, the bath.

HABITAT TRIPS

Habitat Institute for the Environment in Belmont will be sponsoring two natural history field trips this summer.

The first, "Introduction to Shorebirds" will include a Wednesday evening slide lecture on July 23, 7:30 to 10 p.m. and a field trip on Saturday, July 26, 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. The shorebirds of Massachusetts beaches present a fascinating, but confusing, array of summer bird activity. Beginning birders are invited to an all-day field trip to Plum Island and Newburyport to learn the identification and behavior of shorebirds as they begin their early summer migration. The instructor is Paul Roberts, and the fee is $31.

Then, in early August, there will be a weekend of "Hiking in the White Mountains for Alpine Wildflowers," Friday, Aug. 1-3. This program will focus on the alpine ravines which are inaccessible in the early summer due to snow cover. The scenery will be breathtaking as you hike along cascading streams above treeline to identify a variety of alpine wildflowers. On Friday evening, participants will stay at the AMC Pinkham Notch Camp and will have a slide/lecture on mid-summer wildflowers. On Saturday, there will be an all-day hike up to Lake of the Clouds Hut where people will stay that night and then explore Bigelow's Lawn, a windswept alpine area on Sunday. The instructor will be Robert Buchsbaum, and the fee is $135, including accommodations and meals.

Please call Habitat at 489-5050 for more information on these and other natural history education programs.

HAMMOND CASTLE

Hammond Castle will present on Friday, June 27 the first of three concerts to be given by the popular chamber orchestra, "Music at Eden's Edge" as part of the Museum's Summer Concert Series. The program Friday evening, beginning at 8:30 P.M., will include works by Reinecke, Sibelius, Shostakovich, Peyton and Ives, as well as the Grieg Sonata in G Major, Op. 13 for Violin and

King's Chapel celebrates its history

by NANCY KESSNER

Christian Unitarian in theology, Anglican in service, and congregational in government, King's Chapel is celebrating a 300-year history that has made it truly unique.

In 1686, after the Massachusetts Bay Colony lost its charter, a royal governor was sent from England, accompanied by an Anglican chaplain, the Rev. Robert Ratcliffe. The Puritan population was outraged. Here, on their very doorstep, were two things they had hoped never to see again: English government and English religion.

Adding to their dismay, the Town House and the Old South Church were temporarily "borrowed" for Anglican services. When purchase of land to build a church was denied Gov. Edmund Andros, he took a corner of the burial ground by eminent domain. It was left to history to confer a final injustice — this Puritan cemetery would henceforth be known as King's Chapel Burial Ground.

On that pilfered property, in 1688-89, a small wooden, steeped church was erected. Even after its completion, the neighbors continued to vent their hostility, as documented in the church records by the sizable number of bills for broken windows. Political upheaval in England in 1688 occasioned the removal of Andros and Ratcliffe, but King's Chapel remained.

During the pre-Revolutionary period, the church continued to rely on England for inspiration and sustenance. Royal gifts of silver, books, and furnishings were received; ministers crossed the Atlantic to be ordained; disputes were arbitrated by the Bishop of London. However, the great distance separating New England from the mother country, and changing political and economic priorities, necessitated increasing self-reliance for both the Anglican congregation and their Puritan neighbors. By the time the present stone chapel was erected in the mid-18th century, most of the talent and money for construction were local.

King's Chapel prospered; increased membership led to an enlargement of the wooden church and establishment of two daughter churches, Old North (1723) and Trinity (1734). The congregation was composed of a permanent core of Boston business and professional men and their families, as well as a more-transient contingent of English administrative and military personnel. The common denominator appears to have been a need to associate with things English, whether as a reminder of the homeland, a boost up the social ladder, or a genuine preference for Anglican worship.

In 1741, Henry Caner, the new minister, encouraged efforts to build a larger church. In the fall of 1747, when a storm tore part of the roof from the building, a subscription was begun. Rebuilding plans were hampered in 1748 when still unfriendly neighbors balked at further encroachment on the burial ground and the removal of the adjacent Boston Latin School to build the new church. Progress was made only after the reluctant church leaders agreed to rebuild the school on a site across the street.

In June 1749, a letter was sent to Peter Harrison, a gentleman-architect of high repute in Newport, R.I., requesting that he design the new building. Church leaders wrote that they hoped the building would be imposing and substantial, but suggested that economy be practiced.

Immediately, the Building Committee hired workmen to dig the foundation. Their faith was rewarded; in September, Harrison's plans arrived; the church was to be the first major public building constructed of stone in America, built of granite from the quarries in nearby Quincy.

While its exterior was likened to a fortress with portholes, its interior was the essence of the Georgian style in vogue in England. As church ritual and theology would become an amalgam of traditions, so too would the building blend Old and New World resources and styles. Harrison received thanks, but no payment.

As in the wooden church, the box pews were owned by individuals or families and were passed down from generation to generation. Only pew owners had a say in governing the church. Pew location reflected social status, with the center pews being reserved for the elite. Servants and nonmembers were relegated to the balcony.

For a time in the wooden church, there was a condemned prisoners' pew at the back; its most notorious occupant was Captain Kidd, the pirate. The three-tiered Georgian pulpit, built in 1717-18, remained from the original building. Each level served a purpose of ascending importance, with the clerk's desk for recording attendance and collections and leading chants and Psalms, the reading desk for lessons and Morning Prayer, and the pulpit for elevating sermons.

In the balcony, a large organ replaced a smaller one that had been a bequest in 1713 from Thomas Brattle of Cambridge. King's Chapel was the accidental recipient of the original organ, because the Puritans would not allow a musical instrument in their churches. So began a long tradition of excellent music at King's Chapel. Above the 1756 organ were placed the mitre and crown representing English power. These were hidden during the Revolution, but later restored as symbols of the church's early heritage. The crypt contained 20 family tombs and a Stranger's Tomb for individuals with no means for proper burial.

The major building program, except for the portico and steeple, was completed in 1754. The encircled wooden building was dismantled and, by some accounts, unceremoniously thrown out the windows of the new building. The interior of the new structure was completed during the next decade.

By the 1770s, this English-oriented church was caught up in revolutionary turmoil, culminating in the expulsion of the loyalist portion of the congregation, plus the minister, in March 1776. An older, embittered Reverend Caner went to Halifax, Nova Scotia, then England, carrying with him the church records and silver. The records were returned by his relatives after his death in 1805, but the silver disappeared forever. It was replaced by a local silversmith, Paul Revere.

During the Revolutionary War, the remaining congregation scattered; the church was closed. It was reopened in 1776 for the ceremonial reburial of Maj. Gen. Joseph Warren, who died at the battle of Bunker Hill. For five years, in an ironic turnabout, the Old South Church congregation occupied King's Chapel, while their church was restored, after being used as a riding school by the British.

In 1782, Dr. Thomas Bulfinch, father of architect Charles Bulfinch, provided the impetus for the reopening of King's Chapel. The diminished membership called upon a recent Harvard graduate, James Freeman, to be their Reader. At this time, all Harvard graduates were trained for the ministry. However, without ordination, Freeman was not allowed to celebrate marriages or holy communion. Mr. Freeman soon made it clear to his congregation that he could not, in good conscience, follow the Trinitarian tradition. He had, in fact, come to believe in the Unitarian persuasion.

The congregation did not summarily dismiss Mr. Freeman; they listened to his ideas and proposed changes. In the end, they came to a consensus of agreement with him. Henceforth, King's Chapel would be Unitarian, but the beloved Book of Common Prayer would be preserved, albeit without references to the Trinity or the English Crown. In the end, the congregation took example from the Puritans, ordaining Mr. Freeman themselves. (Most of the Puritan First Churches in New England became Unitarian, joining with their former adversary, King's Chapel.)

In the late 1780s, a rejuvenated congregation added the portico. Since subscription monies were insufficient for stone columns, wood was used. The church was never able to raise the funds to add Mr. Harrison's proposed steeple.

A major change in 1907 shifted ownership and responsibility for the church from the Proprietors of Pews to three Trustees. The Trustees began to buy back pews, a process completed in the late 1970s. Spearheaded by women of the church, the Society of King's Chapel was formed in 1920, offering all members a say in governing the church.

King's Chapel remains a family church for longtime Bostonians, but membership also includes new Bostonians attracted by its unique service and liberality of spirit.

Austin Prep's Russian medalists

Six Austin Preparatory School students have won medals in the New England Olympiads of Spoken Russian held recently at Phillips Academy in Andover. Peter Dubuque won a gold medal, Ronald Passerini a silver, and bronze medals were won by Eric Szmyt, Timothy Ramar, Michael MacMullin, and Nick Vickers. In a special competition in public recitation of Russian poetry Nick Vickers and Timothy Ramar won gold medals.

The Austin Prep students competed this year against Russian students from Phillips Andover Academy, Phillips Exeter Academy, the Buckingham, Browne, and Nichols School, Deerfield Academy, Northfield Mount Hermon School, Newton North High School, Amherst

High School, and the Exeter, New Hampshire Public Schools. All students were judged in three categories: general conversation, Russian culture, and poetry memorization and recitation. The competition is conducted entirely in Russian, with Russian emigres and professors of the language as judges. It is believed that the New England competition is the largest Russian language Olympiad in the West.

All of the Austin medal winners are members of the school's Russian Club. Vickers and MacMullin were participants in the school's most recent summer field trip to Russia.

Heart disease rare in China

Why do the Chinese suffer less from heart disease than Westerners? Results from a study published in the medical journal Arteriosclerosis show that, compared to a European population, total cholesterol levels are lower at all ages in the People's Republic of China. In Belgium, where the study was conducted, the average cholesterol level is about 220 milligrams per deciliter (mg/dl) of blood. In China, cholesterol averages about 140 mg/dl. According to the report, the Chinese diet is low in cholesterol and fat, particularly saturated fat. About half of the total fat intake consists of the polyunsaturated type from corn, sesame, or fish. Mazola Nutrition/Health Information Service.

Eat right, feel right

Anorexia nervosa is a disorder marked by an obsessive drive to be thin. The poor eating habits of anorexics can lead to a deficiency of essential fatty acids, say investigators at the University of Michigan. Since the body is unable to manufacture these essential nutrients, they must come from the diet. During the Michigan study, a high daily intake of linoleic acid prevented the anorectic patients from developing deficiency symptoms such as dry scaly skin and slow wound healing. The amount of linoleic acid given to the anorectic patients are equal to the amount in about three tablespoons of corn oil per day. Mazola Nutrition/Health Information Service.

Karate Kid
Short Takes

The Karate Kid Part II Starring Ralph Macchio, Noriyuki "Pat" Morita, Tamlyn Tomita, Danny Kamekoma, Yuji Okumoto. Directed by John G. Avildsen. Produced by Jerry Weintraub. Written by Robert Mark Kamen. Rated PG (profanity, violence).

Movie sequels are a shakey business at best. Usually, not always, but usually, they cannot compare with the original. And, as the story continues in ongoing sequels, the plot is often watered down to the point where it is unrecognizable.

The sequel to the Karate Kid had a lot to live up to. Not only was the film a huge box office success, but it had a sweet, wholesome quality that endeared it to the public and critics alike. Not quite the case with The Karate Kid Part II, although the filmmakers obviously made a valiant effort. It's not that the leads, Ralph Macchio and Noriyuki "Pat" Morita are unable to continue charming the public, but the script they are given to work with eventually erodes into a smarmy, melodramatic soap opera.

The story picks up exactly where the original ended and then fast-forwards us six months into the future, when Morita is about to travel to his homeland of Okinawa, accompanied by his Karate student, Macchio.

While Morita spouts his homespun philosophies and Macchio acts as being the devoted, enthusiastic student, the film moves along a happy and smooth path, especially when Morita is in the forefront.

But when writer Robert Mark Kamen introduces a grunting, completely evil Karate instructor as Morita's long standing enemy, the tightly spun tale quickly unravels.

As Sato, the black guard with an equally brutish family, Danny Kamekoma delivers the rotten goods, but no one can be that brutally bad and remain interesting. Expanding the emotions and reasonings behind these scoundrels would have added some much-needed dimension to the film.

However, while adults may not swallow the larger-than-life plot, teens and pre-teens probably will. If nothing else, they are sure to be attracted by the rousing atmosphere the movie manages to emit, despite the flaws. Unless you are a real hard-bitten character yourself, you can't help but cheer Macchio and Morita on against the bullies — even if you know better intellectually.

Short Takes

Spacecamp was apparently produced by people who assumed that the combined intelligence of the audience had halted at a third grade level, as this is one of the most inane plots ever launched under the guise of a thriller. Who would believe that high school kids could accidentally get launched in a space shuttle? Even NASA wouldn't do that. Rated PG.

Ferris Bueller's Day Off is a giddy monument to those of us who like to take a few moments to enjoy life. Director John Hughes certainly hit comedic paydirt with Mathew Broderick as the truant teen who nimble holds his own in an adult world. Rated PG.

Manhattan Project is technically a fine film and the acting ranges from good to great, but the premise is so undeniably strange and unreal that the film cannot possibly work. Christopher Collette's motives for building an atomic bomb as an afternoon activity are hazy at best, and this lack of understanding puts a pall on the entire flick. Rated PG-13.

Legal Eagles is what Hollywood studios pray for. Three gorgeous, talented stars (Debra Winger, Daryl Hannah and Robert Redford), a funny, intelligent mainstream script and high production values. Commercial? Sure. But entertaining and absorbing? You bet. Rated PG.

Raw Deal is one of Arnold Schwarzenegger's better films, although it is still mired in a guns and gangsters mentality. The bodies fall and the blood spurts as Arnold tries to help out an FBI buddy, but if you can live with the violence, this isn't bad for the genre. Rated R.

Back To School is Rodney Dangerfield at his low brow best. A great script and an interesting supporting cast keep the jokes buoyant as Rodney the millionaire goes to college. Rated PG-13.

Invaders from Mars is a mediocre remake of a 1953 so-so science fiction flick. The special effects are lousy and since no new ground was broken, one wonders what the point was? Rated PG.

Dream Lover defies the basic concept of thrillers, because if you want to scare your audience, you have to keep them awake. Kristy McNichol portrays a woman who has trouble sleeping because of violent nightmares. She should have watched this flick, it would have put her right out. Rated R.

Trouble in Mind is a POPULAR FILM STARS RALPH MACCHIO (l) and Noriyuki "Pat" Morita (r) are re-teamed in Columbia Pictures' "The Karate Kid Part II" as the popular duo discover more about the price of honor and the power of friendship. The film was directed by John G. Avildsen from an original screenplay by Robert Mark Kamen and was produced by Jerry Weintraub, with R.J. Louis serving as executive producer.

melodramatic love story with a timeless atmosphere and elements of classic film noirs. This intriguing flick about an urban love triangle has an eclectic cast including Kris Kristofferson, Lori Singer and Divine, that campy transvestite, in her, ah his, first straight role. Rated R.

sailor proves that romance is more important than politics. Watch for the bleached blonde, Margi Clarke, a newcomer who is a cross between Madonna and Holly Golightly. Rated R.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

You know or heard the song "Those Wedding Bells Are Breaking Up That Ole Gang of Mine." Here's what happened to some of my friends, Dicky Powers, he has a job writing, "Good Will" and inspirational verses for a greeting card company. We went to Las Vegas one year, and Dicky tried his luck at the "dice" table. He threw the dice and a third one fell out of his sleeve. The croupier picked them up, kept one then handed two to Dicky. Without cracking a smile and cool as a kitten he said, "Shoot sir, your point is fourteen."

Bob Giguere became a Metro Police Officer. Capt. Joe Carli ordered him to watch a prisoner, an escape artist. He was told to watch all the exits and to be alert at all times. Nevertheless the prisoner escaped. Bob explained to Capt. Carli that he watched all the exits, but he must have escaped through one of the entrances.

Louis O'Malley went in the electronic business. He met and later married his lovely wife Gail. He couldn't "resist" her "magnetic" personality that "transformed" Lou from a 95 lb. tough kid into a 200 lb. "weaking."

Richard Liberace outgrew an impediment (he couldn't take his hands out of his pockets when it came time to pay down at Micky's thirteenth parlor). Richard went on and graduated from MIT and helped test the Atomic bomb at Los Alamos. Libby is also a golf addict who missed a hole in one last week by three strokes.

Fr. Robert Burns always had plenty of "spirit," so he became a bartender. The "Father" is an honorary title. He flunked "Beano" so he had to leave the seminary. Jimmy Quinno was one of the nicest fellows in the gang. He worked in a sausage making plant but had to give it up - he couldn't make both ends "meet." I say "hello," to Jimmy every Thursday at the Woburn Elks.

Wayne Higden of Burlington served in Vietnam, then returned to work in a lumber yard where he is now "chairman of the board." He also attends all "panel" discussions and helps solve all "knotty" problems. Wayne's lovely wife Diane is a former "Rainbow Girl."

Handsome Dan Gately was the youngest of the group. He is about to be promoted to Captain of the Metro Police. I hope the "Ole gang will get together to honor Dan with "cop-cakes" and coffee. Officers William Shields and Paul Pierce of Woburn, and Ron Powers of Revere will be on the committee.

A verse by Emily Dickenson is exactly the reason for Woodchips. "If I can stop one heart from breaking and help one fainting robin into its nest again, I shall not have lived in vain." I hope to bring a smile to someone who has forgotten how.

A stranger entered the church in the middle of a sermon and seated himself in the back pew. After a while he began to fidget. Leaning over to the white haired man at his side he whispered, "How long has he been preaching?" "About 30 or 40 years I guess," the man replied. "In that case, I'll stay," the stranger exclaimed, "he must be nearly finished!"

My wife Kathy told a neighbor, "Make sure that your new kitchen range is installed level. If it isn't your food won't 'burn' evenly as it should." I came home from work yesterday and found my wife in tears. She explained that she had cooked a fish dinner for me and the cat ate it. "Don't cry dear," I told her, "I can always get you a new cat!" She took a course in the culinary arts and her specialty was making "marble cakes." They will serve as visible testimony of her talent. We have the most beautiful and durable marble "patio floor" in Middlesex County.

I asked Abbott Rowe, "How long have you been working here?" He smiled and said, "since my boss caught me 'loafing'." Abbott lives in Amesbury and works in Winchester, so he reads Woodchips every week. He has two beautiful daughters, Jennifer, who graduated from Amesbury High School last week, and Sara, a junior and starting softball pitcher who recently pitched a "no-hitter."

The only athlete in my family is uncle John Shea of North Reading. He has held the "shot put title" for years. He can put a "shot" away quicker than Johnny Ave, the bartender, can water it down. There are two political parties, not because there are two sides to every question, but because there are two sides to every office - "outside" and "inside."

When my nephew, Dennis Tully, went to summer camp last year he didn't bother to call or write home for two weeks. My sister Maureen called him and was disappointed to discover that he hadn't missed her or her husband John at all. "Have any of the other kids gotten homesick?" Maureen asked. "Only the ones who have dogs," replied Dennis.

"Tact" is making a point without making an enemy. I nearly made a killing in the stock market last week, I shot my broker. He told me, "Beachcomber, get in on the ground floor; Otis Elevator is going up." Potato chips is a wise investment, designer jeans are going to split, and Twenty Mule Team is good for the long haul. I was doing great, then he told me to sell everything and put my money in bakeries. When the yeast failed to rise, I lost all my dough. My advice is this, bulls and bears are good, but watch out and beware of "bum steers."

Zsa Zsa Gabor said, "I never hated a man enough to give him back his diamonds." Wilmington school principal, William Fay said it well at the retirement party for Irene (Sharp) Brennan. "She came here to teach for a couple of weeks and stayed for 40 years. A native of Charlestown, she would tell her students who knew her for many years as Miss Sharp, "I'm 'sharp' by name, 'sharp' by nature and

'sharp-tongued' when I have to be." Woodchips wishes you a healthy, happy retirement.

The Indians presented General Custer with an Arrow shirt for Father's Day, wearing it with a "bow tie" he looked real "sharp!"

Letter to Anthony

Dear Anthony,

Thanks a million for your latest letter and your very kind description of "Bishop Daily." I am deeply grateful to you.

Thanks, too, for the poems and for the Middlesex News column: "Woodchips" on Wednesday, May 7, 1986.

Keep up the good work. You certainly bring good cheer and a lot of good sense to many people. God bless your efforts always.

Sincerely and gratefully in Christ,

Most Reverend Thomas V. Daily
Bishop of Palm Beach

Summer flicks: A light, entertaining mix

By Rochelle O'Gorman Flynn

Summer flicks, like summer books, tend to be light and entertaining. That is the rule of thumb in the film industry and you can be sure that this summer is no different from any other, except that there are a few less teen movies and a few more of us older folk this time around.

Comedies seem to be leading the pack of movies that will be bombarding the theatres from Memorial Day on. Everybody, it seems, wants to make us laugh.

Billy Crystal and Gregory Hines are "Running Scared" in a Chicago cop comedy and Robert Redford heads the impressive cast of "Legal Eagles," a comedy thriller about art fraud and murder which also stars Debra Winger and Daryl Hannah. Al Franken and Tom Davis of "Saturday Night Live" fame not only wrote but perform in "One More Saturday Night," a tribute to the American dating ritual.

One of the more off-beat stories will come when "Howard the Duck" jumps off the comic book pages and into a celluloid comedy starring Lea Thompson as a rock singer who is drawn to this duck from another planet.

Bette Midler and Danny DeVito are "Ruthless People" while Robin Williams and Peter O'Toole are eclectically cast as the leads in "Club Paradise," about a second rate resort.

A movie based on a Rolling Stones song finds Whoopi Goldberg as a bank employee suddenly thrust into a series of action-packed adventures in "Jumpin' Jack Flash," directed by Penny Marshall. Tom Hanks and Jackie Gleason will attempt to make us laugh at divorce in "Nothing in Common." Kurt Russell stars in "Big Trouble in Little China" a film being touted as a mystical action-adventure-comedy-Kung fu-monster-ghost story. You figure that one out.

"A Fine Mess" is Blake Edwards latest effort starring Ted Danson ("Cheers") and Howie Mandel ("St. Elsewhere") as two bumbling idiots trying to make a fast buck. Hopefully following the tradition of Airplane and not Moving Violations, "Stewardess School" is a comedy about a group of inept students with a burning desire to fly. And everyone's favorite doormat, Rodney Dangerfield, is going "Back to School."

Those of you really seeking escapism will have a few fantasies to look forward to. "Solarbabies" is a futuristic sci-fi that is supposed to be a mix of E.T., Mad Max and Roller Ball. The burning question being - Do these films get royalties?

Singer David Bowie plays one of the two humans who appear amid a menagerie of never-before seen creatures in "Labryrinth," the fantastical tale of a girl's race through a hazardous maze in an effort to rescue her baby brother. You can bet Bowie isn't the good guy.

Murder, mahem and horror aren't neglected, although we may want to neglect Anthony Perkins if his directorial debut of "Psycho III," is anything like its trashy predecessor. Also making his directorial debut is Stephen King with one of his own stories in "Maximum Overdrive," a chiller in which the machines of the world revolt against mankind. Wes Craven, who gave us "Nightmare on Elm Street" pushes technology to its limits in "Deadly Friends," a story about a genius, his robot and a young mother.

While romance is an integral part of the summer movie scene, one of the biggies this year is an anti-romance, so to speak. "Heartburn" brings life to Nora Ephron's scathing book about the break-up of her marriage to Carl Bernstein, and stars Meryl Streep and Jack Nicholson.

Alan Rudolph, whose last film was the quirky "Choose Me" departs from his usual theme of urban relationships with "Trouble in Mind," a melodramatic love story starring Kris Kristofferson, Keith Carradine and Lori Singer. The casting of that (in)famous transvestite Divine, in his/her first all-male role makes one assume this will be an interesting, if not unusual, flick.

Prince will not only be "Under the Cherry Moon," but he directed this love story that is set in the South of France, and features plenty of his music. Rob Lowe, Demi Moore and Jim Belushi star in "About Last Night," a humorous look at one-night stands and long-term commitments, based on the play "Sexual Perversity in Chicago."

Teenagers, though not worshipped for their allowances this summer, are not forgotten. Olympic gold medalist Mitch Gaylord is making his acting debut in "American Anthem," a story of struggle amid hard economic times. Ferris Bueller's "Day Off" is about a teenager who stops to smell the roses. King of the Teen Flick, John Hughes, wrote, directed and co-produced this comedic vehicle for Mathew Broderick.

Christopher Collet and John Lithgow turn building a nuclear bomb into an afterschool activity in "The Manhattan Project." Brat packer Demi Moore and John Cusack star in another romantic comedy, "One Crazy Summer." And what could win this summer's Questionable Taste Award is "SpaceCamp," an adventure film in which a group of teenagers are accidentally launched in one of NASA's space shuttles.

If you want your blood to boil and your toes to curl but would settle for an occasional spine tingle, then you'll get a kick out of this season's action/adventure yarns. "Raw Deal" features gun-toting (grrrr) Arnold Schwarzenegger as a former FBI agent called in for one final mission. On a less pulsating, muscular scale is "Let's Get Harry." A story of small-town plumbers who plan to rescue their pal from South American terrorists, it stars Robert Duvall and Gary Busey.

"Shanghai Surprise," starring Madonna and her hostile hubby, Sean Penn, finds the duo in 1930's Shanghai. Madonna is a missionary (nudge, nudge, wink, wink) who teams up with an American fortune hunter (Penn) to look for a cache of stolen opium. George Harrison, the executive producer, will provide some of the songs.

While children are almost ignored, there are a few features that will help to occupy all that time they have on their hands. The popular toy and T.V. character, "My Little Pony" will help to fill Hasbro's coffers with a full-length animated feature while Disney's newest animated film is "The Great Mouse Detective." What looks the most promising is "The Boy Who Could Fly," an adventure with Bonnie Bedelia, Fred Savage and Fred Gwynne.

Lastly come the remakes, redoes, and sequels. The movie industry parades these rehashes around every summer in an effort to convince us that originality is a sin. This year's remakes start off when Ralph Macchio and Noriyuki "Pat" Morita come out swinging again on Japanese turf in "The Karate Kid II."

Jeff Goldblum is an unlucky scientist who loses his head over a common household pest in the ABC MOTION PICTURES' "SPACECAMP" is a contemporary adventure about a group of teenagers whose summer at a camp for future astronauts turns into an unexpected space-shuttle voyage. Starring are from bottom Leaf Phoenix, Tate Donovan, Lea Thompson, Kelly Preston, Larry B. Scott and (center) Kate Capshaw.

sci-fi remake of "The Fly," and 1979's megahit "Alien" is returning via the originally titled sequel, "Aliens."

Director Tobe Hooper remade "Invaders From Mars" and the buzz saw once again achieves star status in "The Texas Chainsaw Massacre II." Lastly, those of you who want to replay that formulated bloodbath with Jason can partake of "Friday the 13th Part VI: Jason Lives." But remember, if nobody goes to see such tired gore, the producers may finally let Jason bury the hatchet.

"What Every Child Should Know"

"What Every Child Should Know" is an enjoyable collection of stories and songs on videotape which teaches children how to recognize potentially dangerous situations and what to do when faced with an emergency. Supermarkets nationwide are making the tape available "on loan" to individuals as well as to community organizations as a public service.

Entitled "Street Smarts," the videotape lending library program is jointly sponsored by Nestle Foods Corporation and Supermarket Communication Systems, Inc. as a public service effort to prevent child abuse and abduction.

The new campaign is an extension of a cooperative effort by the two organizations launched in January last year, featuring photos of missing children on "Good Neighbor" displays in 5,500 supermarkets across the country. The displays carry six to eight children's photos monthly, together with a national "hot-line" number, 800-843-LOST, which rings in the offices of the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children in Washington, DC. An estimated 80 million people see the children's photos weekly, nationwide.

President Reagan's Child Safety Partnership recently commended Nestle Foods and Supermarket Communication Systems for creating the Street Smarts video tape lending library program, and also commended participating supermarkets for making the program available to their customers.

In addition to the videotape, the Street Smarts program provides supermarkets with promotional support in the form of in-store posters, a generic ad "slic" (for use in local advertising), and coloring sheets featuring the Street Smarts theme designed so that stores can make copies for distribution at check-out stations.

"What Every Child Should Know" features original music by Albert Hague, TV star of "Fame" and composer of "How The Grinch Stole Christmas." The tape was written in consultation with Dr. Lewis P. Lipsitt, Director of the Child Study Center at Brown University, and produced by SQN Entertainment Software Corporation of Providence, Rhode Island.

SECRETARY

ARE YOU READY FOR CHANGE?

We're changing. As our office becomes more automated, our jobs and our expectations change. This is most apparent with our secretaries. No longer is typing a major part of the job. With word processing, our secretaries are more like editors and production coordinators. As our work and our schedules become more complex, we rely more upon our secretaries to help keep us organized. In short, a secretary at NREC is now an even more valuable member of our team.

If you are well organized with excellent secretarial skills, and have knowledge of word processing, or the desire to learn, you may be the person that we seek. We offer excellent benefits and starting salary. Are you ready to make that change and join our team? If so, please send your resume, including salary requirement, to:

Young artists publish a comic book

A comic book has just been released that is a bit different from the usual fare. "Tales of Altered Earth" is an anthology of comics stories. The difference is that it is created by the students at Art 'N Facts Studio of Stoneham, Mass. and Hudson, N.H. Some of the Stoneham residents who have their art work included in the book are Mike Kiddy, John Enos, Roger Froilan, Bryan Fanjoy, Alissa Clement, Kimberly DeSimone, Erin Burke and Gary Flynn. Mike Crockett of Wakefield did a story entitled "Hero Force," and Victor Ausilio of Woburn did a story entitled "The Challenge of Mr. Siam."

The directors of the studio, Ellen and Craig Farley, say that each student submitted a three-page story or a series of comic strips to be put in the book. The ages of the artists of "Tales of Altered Earth" range from 7 to 15 years of age. No profit is being made from the book, but hopefully enough money will be collected to make issue 2 a possibility. The comic book is available either at Art 'N Facts Studio or at Blaine's Comics in Stoneham. "We hope the books become collectors' items. Some of these kids might become professional comic artists one day. Imagine having a comic book that John Byrne did when he was 15 years old," says Ellen Farley.

The most important aspect of comics art is to learn to draw better. Proportion, perspective, and anatomical accuracy are stressed. "I sometimes give out anatomical drawings to be copied for homework assignments so they familiarize themselves with human anatomy," Craig points out. The old excuse that you don't have to draw someone well because he is a comics character carries no weight at Art 'N Facts. When kids come here to start the course they are used to doodling their characters and not really giving thought to a coherent story and panel design. The first thing they find out is that it isn't as easy as it looks. "The same basic principles we use in our fine arts course are also applied in the comics art course. After all, it is drawing and design," says Ellen.

The intention of the course and the production of the comic book is to develop serious comics artists for the future. The Farleys, who are commercial artists, know that teamwork is essential to good comic book production. Students learn how to deal with art work changes, correctly and accurately measuring the art boards and listening to constructive criticism. In a team project such as book production where you have editors, writers, and artists working together, the process takes much longer than most students think it will. Some of the students in the advanced stages are working on team projects where one writes the story, one draws and designs it and another inks the boards. The stories published in the first issue are all separate projects worked on by one student. In issue 2, there will be much better work because it will be the team projects and the students must earn their way into the book. "These kids will be able to present their art work in a very professional manner to an editor one day using the skills learned in their comic book classes," Craig says.

The first issue, on the stands now, was published in a run of 100 copies. The printing was done by EM Graphics of Hudson, N.H.

Wakefield summer school ready to open

The Wakefield Elementary Summer School is ready to open. Summer School will begin on Wednesday, June 25 and run through Friday, August 1. This year, the summer program will be held at the Greenwood School. The hours for Summer School are 8:45 to 11:45 A.M., Monday through Friday. Four different programs will be offered: the pre-kindergarten program, the pre-first grade program, the improvement program and the enrichment program.

The pre-kindergarten program is open to any child who is going to be entering kindergarten for the first time in September. Basically, this is a readiness program designed to give students a head-start before entering kindergarten in the fall.

The pre-first grade program is designed for students who have already completed kindergarten and will be entering first grade in September. The goal of this program is to review the skills already learned in kindergarten and to help the students become better prepared to enter first grade.

The improvement program is available to any students who have completed grades one to five. The emphasis is on reading and math. Teachers will develop individualized programs which will focus on helping the students to improve their skills. Some enrichment activities will also be provided and a computer will be in every classroom to be used as a teaching tool.

The enrichment program is open to any child from grades one through five. Students who enroll in this program will participate in all of the enrichment courses. This year's course offering include: computer programming, music, drama, art appreciation and history, health education, physical education and aerobics.

The Wakefield Elementary Summer School is open to all students in Wakefield and other communities. If you have any questions or would like further information regarding the Wakefield Elementary Summer School, please contact Mr. James Boyd, Summer School Director, at the Franklin School, 246-0631, between the hours of 9 A.M. and 3 P.M.

Up With People in Danvers

The "Up With People" Show, seen by 14 million people in 48 countries, is coming to Danvers, live in concert on Friday and Saturday, June 27 and 28. Both shows are scheduled for 7 p.m. at Danvers High School.

The Salem Evening News is sponsoring this highly acclaimed two-hour musical experience performed by a cast of 120 young men and women from 16 countries.

The audience is always part of the "Up With People" show. In this new show, called "Beat of the Future," audience members may find themselves singing with a computer or dancing in the aisles with a Japanese lion.

In a medley of songs from Ragtime, the Big Bands and early Rock and Roll, the cast predicts that the music and dances of the past will be "Back in Style" in the year 2000 and today's top hits will be the golden oldies of the future.

With colorful costumes, songs and dances, "Up With People" continues its popular tradition of taking the audiences on a musical tour around the world. This international medley includes a Chinese Ribbon Dance, the Russian "Gopak," a Scandinavian Polka and a good old-fashioned American Hoedown, to name a few.

"Up With People's" show "Beat of the Future" guarantees everyone an evening of exciting entertainment and leaves them with a real optimism for the years to come.

Anyone interested in hosting an international cast member from Thursday, June 26 to Sunday, June 29 or would like additional information, please contact the Promotion team, Lin Crauwels (Belgium), Scott Hanson (Minnesota), or Paul Kunz (Idaho) at 744-0600 or 774-1000.

UFO forum in Beverly

Dr. Richard Haines, research scientist and team director of human factors engineering in the Space Station program, will head a cast of some of the leading UFO researchers in the United States at a two-day forum in August at the Beverly Golf & Tennis Club. The conference is being sponsored by Massachusetts MUFON, Inc., and is a project of Marge Christensen, a Beverly High School teacher, and National Public Relations Director for the Mutual UFO Network. This year's forum will be the third one held in Beverly, and will be one of the nationwide events kicking off the country's second National UFO Information Week.

The week of August 10-17 has been designated by Christensen for the purpose of informing the public about the reality of the UFO phenomenon and the need for more serious scientific research into the subject. The Beverly forum will be held on the weekend of August 9 and 10.

Dr. Haines' paper will deal with the disappearance of Australian pilot, Frederick Valentich in October of 1978 during a UFO sighting. This incident is the subject of Haines' latest book.

Another speaker, Dr. Bruce Maccabee, is an optical physicist for the U.S. Navy Surface Weapons Research Center, and is also the Director of the Fund for UFO Research. A recent wave of sightings of a giant boomerang-shaped object over Putnam, Fairfield, and Westchester Counties in N.Y. and Ct. will be the topic of the paper given by Philip Imbrogno, a science teacher who has been one of the chief investigators for these sightings for the past 3 years. Other speakers will include Budd Hopkins, author of the book, Missing Time, and internationally known researcher of UFO abduction cases.

Interested persons should contact Massachusetts MUFON, 8 Maple St., Reading, Ma. 01867, or call the hotline telephone number at 944-0686. Pre-registration fee for the 2-day forum is $25 if submitted prior to July 1. After July 1, the fee will increase to $30 per person.
